The President Returns.
Prayers and Cannon.
New Ideas Cause Fear.
Earthquakes and Mad Foxes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YESTERDAY MORNING bands played, crowds cheered, President Roosevelt landed at Portland, Ore., back from his pleasant, useful combination fishing trip and inspection of Uncle Sam's island possessions. All the people are glad to have him back safely, and will now doubtless begin to answer the questions he asked on the radio, before he left, something after the fashion of "jesting Pilate" who "would not wait for an answer."

You remember that the President asked all Americans:

"Are you better off than you were last year?

"Are your debts less burdensome?

"Is your bank account more secure?

"Are your working conditions better?

"Is your faith in your own individual future more firmly grounded?"

SOME BIG industrialists report business better. Many smaller people will tell the President "there seemed to be an improvement up to about two weeks ago, then things went back."

That is the unanimous report of hotelkeepers. They say the Wall street slump which came a few days ago discourages their business and they wonder why something is not done "to hold up Wall street prices that represent the public's opinion of all great properties in America."

IN GERMANY, cannon boom loudly, expressing the national sorrow, while many pray for the soul of the old patriot who served his country so well. They pray perhaps also that his memory may have power to curb Hitler, as Hindenburg is supposed to have curbed the Chancellor while living.

Angels that listen, unless divinely enlightened, may find it difficult to understand that loud cannon roaring and whispered prayers refer to the same earthly event.

CHANCELLOR HITLER tells Germany:

"I am steeped in the conviction that all authority of the state must proceed from the people and be ratified in free, secret election."

Germany will vote and it is easy to guess how. As a matter of fact, Germans are still overwhelmingly with Hitler, as regards numbers, although not quite as "overwhelmingly" as they were some time ago. Every German soldier has taken the following oath:

"I swear by God this holy oath: That I shall be absolutely obedient to der Fuehrer (the leader) of the German Reich and people, Adolph Hitler, supreme head of the army, and that I will be ready as a brave soldier to give my life for this oath."

If there should be any voting slip the army can be relied on to take care of the situation.

If the chain of human intelligence is no stronger than its weakest link, it is a feeble chain.

As is well known, many savage tribes do not know that marriage contributes to the creation of children or that the father has anything to do with the child's arrival. Young women are told not to go into the water at certain times, warned that demons in the waves will cause them to have children.

In other tribes, when twins appear, both are killed. The father believes that while one is probably his, the other is certainly the child of a demon. Not knowing which is which, he kills both.

CETINJE, MONTENEGRO, reports a farmer stoned to death by villagers who saw him using a toothbrush and concluded that it was "a magic wand for practicing witchcraft." Unfortunately for the victim, he was seen using the "strange instrument that he carried" just after a cow had ceased to give milk, two dogs had gone mad, and the son of the richest man in the village had eloped with a gypsy girl.

It is not for us that call ourselves civilized to critize these simple villagers.

The toothbrush was a new idea to them. You know what our "best minds" usually do with a new idea, no matter how useful. They get used to it and reach the conclusion that it is really their own.

MILD EARTHQUAKE shocks have gently rocked the coast of Maine recently, but nothing catyclysimic happened. Win-

'New Napoleon' Seeks America's Approval In Bid for Crown

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler, seeking to consolidate his position as the "New Napoleon," summoned the all-Nazi Reichstag today to assemble Monday for a memorial service to the late President Paul von Hindenburg.

Chancellor Hitler's address, a chancellery spokesman intimated, will be of a political nature, with a direct eulogy of von Hindenburg reserved for the funeral services Tuesday at Tannenberg.

Because of the unusual circumstances of his coup d'etat, whereby he merged the offices of president and chancellor, Hitler was believed to be intending to seize the occasion to justify his assumption of the powers of a monarch.

From the Reichstage rostrum Der Fuehrer is expected to utilize what may be his best opportunity to justify in a guarded way to the German people and the world his precipitate action of Thursday, immediately after von Hindenburg's death.

RECLUSE SLAIN IN MYSTERY

TIONESTA, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Whether robbers or careless hunters were responsible for the shooting to death of a backwoodsman presented investigators with an enigma today.

The victim, Lawrence A. Smith, 31, was found in his lonely forest cabin, shot through the chest, by two small boys seeking woodchucks yesterday.

Smith, formerly from Limestone, Clarion County, had lived alone in the cabin for about a year. It is located near East Hickory, in Forest County.

State police from Kane who, together with Forest County authorities, began the investigation, said Smith apparently had been dead for several days.

They reported finding two loaded guns in the cabin, neither of which had been fired, discounting a suicide theory. The door of the cabin bore a bullet hole, almost in line with a spot on the floor where Smith's crumpled body was found.

Dempsey Father of Girl

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. — Jack Dempsey's first born will not follow in his footsteps in the ring.

This fact was firmly established today when it was announced that the former heavyweight champion's wife had given birth to a seven and a half pound baby girl at Polyclinic Hospital. Both Mrs. Dempsey, who was Hannah Williams, stage star, and the baby were doing well.

Mrs. Dempsey

And so is Jack, reported Max Waxman, Dempsey's business manager, saying:

"He took a lot of punishment, though. He was up all night pacing the floor. But he, too, is resting well now."

Dempsey had expressed the hope the baby would be a boy. Tramping the hospital corridors, he said:

"If it is I'm going to match him with Gene Tunney's kid as soon as they are big enough."

After he learned he had become the father of a girl, the ex-champion quickly assured his friends that he was satisfied, declaring:

French Reds Block Air Attack Tests

AVIGNON, France, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Combined demonstrations by Communists and Socialists prevented tests here today of the facilities provided to defend the city against air attacks.

The demonstrators lighted large blazes at strategic points throughout the city though lights had been ordered extinguished leaving the city in darkness. The demonstration was carried out as a protest against France's military preparedness.

Again Seeks Identity Of Drowned Man

Morgue officials today continued efforts to identify the body of a man recovered from the Allegheny River near the Sixth street bridge July 24, after a communication was received from Rochester (N. Y.) police that the victim was not Earl J. Shellheimer, 41, of that city.

Local authorities communicated with Rochester officials after it had been reported the victim had a wife and child there. They were told the Rochester man was alive.

FATHER COX NAMED CITY ASSESSOR

McNair Meets Priest At Train, Gives Him Job

Father James R. Cox, whom Council refused to confirm as city magistrate, was a City Assessor today, holding office by virtue of a recess appointment this morning by Mayor William N. McNair.

The appointment of the priest took place while most of the city officials were finishing their breakfasts or arriving at the offices. Father Cox returned from his annual pilgrimage to Rome at 8:35 and by 9 o'clock he was a city official.

ASKS CONFIRMATION

Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, was present when Father Cox was sworn in as assessor. The Mayor then dictated the following letter to Council:

"I have appointed the Rev. James R. Cox as recess appointment as a member of the Board of Assessors and ask confirmation of the same."

Father Cox took over office "A" in the Department of Assessors, the room formerly occupied by James P. Bailey and O. B. Hannon, two of three assessors recently dropped by McNair.

He will share it with Oscar Stoehr, another recent appointee of McNair's.

APPRECIATES POST

Interviewed in his office, the new assessor said:

"I appreciate the appointment very much. I hope it will not be a recess appointment but a permanent place by the later action of Council."

The position pays $375 a month.

Father Cox had returned this morning from his pilgrimage to Lourdes, France, and to Rome. He brought back a greeting to McNair from the Pope as well as an Irish shilalah of no mean size and dignity.

McNair greeted him in the depot with the announcement that he'd discharged everyone at the North Side police court to meet the train on time. Then he said:

"Well, how about swearing you in? Let's go to my office right now."

MAYOR McNAIR

DYNAMITE FOUND ON TRACKS

U. S. Sleuths on Trail As President Speeds Over Danger Zone

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—A sack of dynamite and percussion caps found lying near the railroad right-of-way over which President Roosevelt's train passed early today led to extreme precautions of federal and county officers to avoid any attempt against the Presidential train.

Roosevelt's train passed over the spot, two and a half miles southwest of Spokane, without any untoward incident.

The explosives were discovered by a Union Pacific agent four days ago, who became suspicious of three men he saw depositing a package. Sighting through a watch tower door, the agent directed searchers to the spot where the cache was hidden in the brush.

"We thought possibly the dynamite might have been intended for the President's train and we were taking no chances."

For four days a heavily armed body of secret service men and sheriff's deputies watched the spot. Miles said:

"We kept the guard there to capture the men if they returned for the explosives."

HAILED BY CROWDS

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt crossed the Pacific Northwest today with an announced policy that the government is going to control national power resources and expand this section. Hailed home along the way from his American territorial sea trip by great outpourings of people, Mr. Roosevelt proceeded with his immediate aides to the federal projects of the Columbia River basin. Today he approached the keystone of the Northwest development—the Grand Coulee power and navigation plan.

Traveling last night among the people of this frontier section, Mr. Roosevelt was at the back platform to say "hello." Talking with the folk at Arlington, Ore., he asked how the fishing was, and added he had snared a "pretty good haul" in the Pacific.

Indians in war paint and feathers doing a snake dance around a huge bonfire welcomed Mr. Roosevelt as his train crossed over the Oregon boundary into Washington.

Joe Brown Unhurt In Bicycle Crash

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Joe E. Brown, who has been bumped, scratched, poked, clawed and bitten while enjoying his profession of acting, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when he fell off a bicycle.

Three other bicycles collided with his, throwing him over the handlebars. He managed to turn a somersault and fall clear of the wreckage without injury.

VETO PUTS TUBE TOLLS IN AIR

Washington officials and representatives of Allegheny County Authority had different ideas today on what effect the veto of Mayor McNair of the enabling ordinance to permit the authority to continue with plans for the Liberty Tunnel plaza might have on the entire loan of $24,500,000.

Public Works Administration officials were chagrined when told that Mayor McNair had put a stumbling block in the way of the Authority's plans. Unless prompt action is taken to accept the grant and loan it was declared that the entire amount of $24,500,000 would be assigned to other projects.

Spokesmen for the South Hills groups, who protested against tolls on the plaza, were loud in their praise for the Mayor while county officials expressed themselves as being very much put out.

OTHER OBJECTIONS

The ordinance vetoed by the Mayor yesterday, however, will not seriously interfere with the work of the Authority. The ordinance was only an enabling piece of legislation which would permit the engineers of the Authority to work more freely in drawing up the final plans for the plaza grade separation.

Up until yesterday the Mayor's entire objection seemed to be

Woman Charged Victim of Abuse In Butler Home

By AL GOUGH

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 4.—The County Commissioners are expected to meet today to look into charges that Fred C. Herold, superintendent of the Butler County Home, abused the aged and crippled inmates.

The Commissioners are Poor Directors as well.

And District Attorney Edgar H Negley today made additional charges against Herold, who was the appointee of Republican Commissioners Edward R. Turner, chairman, and T. Payne Nixon. R. O. Wood, Democrat member, was expected to return today and take part in the meeting.

Prosecutor Negley charged today that Nancy Ferguson, an aged inmate, started to walk from the dining room with her cup of tea, to finish it outside. Herold, Negley said, snatched the cup from her, but not before she tossed the tea over him. Herold he said, twisted her arm for punishment.

Negley added:

"She will be called before the grand jury."

3 MEN, 3 GIRLS HURT IN CRASH

Six persons, including three girls, were injured early today in a collision between two autos on West Carson street, near the Point Bridge.

Those hurt were Edward Kerrigan, 23, of 901 Fordham avenue, Brookline; Walter Burg, 25, 600 Delmont avenue, Mt. Oliver; Marie Brendel, 29, 963 Manton way; Catherine Vanderinner, 21, 963 Manton way; Alice Beckmarten, 24, Cedrick avenue, Carrick, and Conrad H. Hahn, 1224 Peermont avenue, Dormont.

Hahn and the Vanderinner girl suffered possible skull fractures.

Hahn and Kerrigan were the drivers, police said. The Beckmarten girl was riding with Hahn and the others with Kerrigan and Burg.

2 Girls, Man Hurt As Auto Hits Truck

Two girls and a man were injured when a truck and auto collided at Jane and South Twenty-second streets last night.

Stanley Uzitowski, 27, of 815 St. Patrick street, driver of the auto, and two of his passengers, Bolera Stamick, 19, 2561 Harkins street, and Mathilda Miller, 23, 3491 Carson street, were treated at South Side Hospital. Police said Walter Koleas, 20, 109 Circle street, Hays, was driving the truck.

Long and Foes Wage Verbal Gas War

Citizens Wisecrack in No Man's Land Between Lines

NEW ORLEANS, Aug 4.—(AP.)—No man's land in New Orleans' political war zone is in the hands of the spectators today, with the only exchanges the repartee of passersby about the "terrible bloodless war."

Swords rattled in their scabbards. Machine guns and rifles remained mute. Generalissimo Huey P. Long gravely announced he was going "on a fishing trip."

There was grimness in the machine guns of National Guardsmen called out by Senator Long and Gov. O. K. Allen, and a potential menace in the rifles of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's special police, but the martial atmosphere ended there.

The troops were fortressed in the martial law zone of the city registration voting office. The Mayor's forces swarmed in the City Hall just across the street.

Derelicts still slept peacefully on benches in quiet Lafayette square, and broadly smiling citizens moved up and down the battle zone in the street making derisive wisecracks.

But all the time, Walmsley said, the guardsmen were busy in the registration office scratching from the books the names of citizens who would vote in the September congressional primary, in which both he and Long are supporting candidates.

Long countered simply by explaining that he was protecting the voting books from unlawful

Both Sides Continue To Bring Up More Men and Arms

raids by Walmsley and cleaning up the city's "vice and corruption" at the same time.

Senator Long said he had gone to Baton Rouge in accordance with the court order and had commanded Gov. Allen, his lieutenant, to demobilize the guardsmen. He laughingly added:

"Gov. Allen told me to go to hell."

Trucks bristling with arms thundered up to the registration office last night, adding steel helmets, gas masks and gas bombs to the machine gun and rifle equipment already there.

Playing the game according to the rules established in the last six days, Mayor Walmsley countered by rushing 300 special police into the City Hall.

Dognap Victim Rejoins His Ma and 'Swoonie'

He had been abducted five months ago in Chicago and not until an intermediary intervened and paid half of the $500 asked as ransom was he released.

Kid Boots Ace, a prize-winning Boston terrier, Swoonie's grandmother's son, was dognaped from Mrs. Louis Rudginsky while on a visit in Chicago. Through the efforts of Paul Schwartz, of Chicago editor of a dog magazine, he was returned yesterday to the owner.

He was in good condition but a bit less frisky than when stolen said Mrs. Rudginsky.

LENGTH OF SHORTS 'UP TO PUBLIC' SAYS PARK CHIEF

RAFT HAILED AS HOLLYWOOD BOUT VICTOR

Quip at Rebuilt Ear Stirs Strife, But All Deny It

Miss Lombard

The embroglio was accompanied by accounts of a bloody battle and a denial that there had been one.

Those who said there was a fight—they included William Sharples, radio announcer, and Les Mawhinney, former newspaper reporter, as well as a dozen or more others — said Raft, Mack (Killer) Grey, his bodyguard, and Sam Satz, Hollywood man-about-town, were the principals.

The scene, they said, was an alley of parking lot. The cause was laid to an asserted quip by Satz anent some plastic surgery performed the other day on Raft's left ear, split in a boxing match.

SCORES FOUR KNOCKDOWNS

Satz reportedly landed a clean clip on Raft's rejuvenated ear and in return was knocked down four times by the actor. Satz's nose, those telling the story said, appeared badly battered, possibly broken.

Raft denied he had fought. Satz denied he was in the neighborhood of the supposed battle. Grey said he had done the fighting with a "guy who passed the remark at me that other night in a club."

Witnesses of the purported fight between the patent-leather-haired actor and Satz, nephew of a chain drug store operator, said it started in a popular film restaurant after Satz remarked:

"There go a couple of boys who just had to be beautiful. Raft had his ear de-cauliflowered and Grey had his nose remodeled."

LUMINARIES THERE

Among those witnesses said were at the informal ringside were Carole Lombard, Judith Allen, June Collyer, Mona Maris, Jack Haley and William Frawley.

It was said Raft smashed Satz's glasses after they had been removed and led with a left, which missed fire and connected with the chin of a "woman from Des Moines."

Satz, the blow-by-blow account continued, landed on Raft's bandaged ear and the actor countered with a series of one-two punches which put Satz upon the ground four times. In the hullabaloo, somebody thought to call the police, six of them arriving in time to find a great crowd collected but no signs of a fight or fighters.

Handwriting Expert to Wed Secretary

Mrs. A. J. Stern, of 1807 Power street, McKeesport, today announced that her daughter, Miss Estelle Stern, will marry Attorney Maurice A. Nernberg tomorrow. Miss Stern has been Nernberg's secretary for six years.

Miss Stern

Attorney Nernberg's testimony as a handwriting expert featured the government's prosecution of vote fraud offenders here on charges growing out of the November 8, 1932, congressional elections.

The couple took out a license to wed yesterday. Rabbi Goodman A. Rose, of Beth Shalom Synagogue, will perform the ceremony. Following a honeymoon motor trip through the East, the couple will be at home in the Beacon Apartments.

Drowns in Bathtub, Mother Finds Body

Lying face downward in eight to ten inches of water, Mrs. Hazel Allen, 29, of Greenock, Elizabeth Township, was found dead in a bathtub by her mother, in her home last night, according to a Coroner's report. The victim had been subject to fainting spells, according to information given morgue officials.

based on the toll question. In his veto yesterday, however, he attached the public statement of his engineers who took issue with the plans of the county. The statement was the opinion of Frederick Bigger, chairman of the City Planning Commission; Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer of the Public Works Department, and Leslie M. Johnston, director of the department.

PLANS ASSAILED

The city engineers and Director Johnston are of the opinion that the plans for the one project are not satisfactory. They declared that the estimate of the Authority engineers would be about $800,000 short of completing the plans as they now stand. The City Planning Commission favors a much more elaborate plan. All three men agreed that if the job is to be done, it should be done on a bigger scale.

In Washington, one PWA official asked:

"Cannot Council pass the ordinance over his veto? If not, well, then there is nothing else to do but abandon the work."

Press C. Dowler, chairman of the Authority, declared:

"The Mayor's action was not entirely unexpected. I don't think it will have any effect on PWA officials. The ordinance was only an enabling act to permit us to go on a bit farther with our plans for the plaza."

William McK. Reed, another member of the Authority, refused to comment on the action of the Mayor.

County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield declared it was to be regretted that the Mayor had vetoed the bill.

County Solicitor J. P. Fife, legal counsel for the Authority, declared he was not greatly worried by the Mayor's action.

'PrettyBabies?' Eight Prizes Await 'Em

Eight happy babies of the district will receive ribbons and prizes at the "pretty baby" contest to be held August 14 at Olympia Park, near McKeesport, by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The babies will be judged in groups ranging from 2 to 5 years old. There will be three classifications by ages, in addition to a separate contest for boy and girl twins.

In each group the first three will be awarded blue, red and white ribbons, and the winning baby in each class will receive a prize.

The contest has just been announced. Less than two weeks remains. Fill out the entry blank today and mail it in before you forget. oLok for full details as to the contest in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

The "pretty baby" contest will be the feature of a day and evening which is expected to draw a record crowd to Olympia Park on August 14. Arrangements have been made to provide guests with special strips of tickets for park amusements.

Auction of Homes Postponed One Year

EASTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Judge William M. McKeen yesterday signed an order postponing for a year the advertised sale by the county treasurer of lands for non payment of 1932 taxes. The sale was scheduled for Monday. A petition to the court was signed by 150 taxpayers and asked for an adjournment of the sale because "great hardship will be worked upon many of the citizens and home owners of Northampton County."

Adds Protest in Incinerator Fight

Father Thomas F. Coakley, of Sacred Heart Church, today had added his support to the East End residents protesting the construction of an incinerator on the Brilliant pumping station site.

Father Coakley stated he had sent letters of protest to each of the City Councilmen. In addition to sending the letters, Father Coakley asked every member of his congregation to lend his support to the protest.

ALUMINUM MEN LOOK TO U. S. IN DISPUTE

Company Turns Down Union Demand; Call For Strike Delayed

Washington was looked to today to avert a threatened strike affecting approximately 35,000 aluminum workers throughout the country, following refusal of the Aluminum Company of America to sign a union contract yesterday.

Confronted by the company's uncompromising stand against the closed shop, checkoff and seniority rights, a mass meeting of members of the New Kensington local of the Aluminum Workers' Council voted last night to continue at work pending another meeting to be held next Friday.

Several of those in attendance at the meeting told reporters the intervention of the Department of Labor would be sought, but this was denied by J. P. Howlitt, president of the New Kensington local and vice president of the national council.

He said:

Other officials of the National Aluminum Workers' organization, reputedly with authority to carry out their threat of a nation-wide strike made 10 days ago, and representatives of the American Federation of Labor were with Howlitt at yesterday's conference with officials of the Aluminum Company.

Refusal to meet the union's demands was made by Roy A. Hunt, president of the company, in a letter addressed to Fred A. Wetmore, secretary of the Aluminum Workers' Council.

It stated the company would continue to get along with its employes without a working agreement, that a "going wage" would continue to be paid its men and that the company "does not recognize it (check-off) in any instance as being either obligatory or desirable."

JOHNSON SEEN CHALLENGING FREE PRESS

Puts NRA Views Over Public Opinion, Says Dean

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Dean Carl W. Ackerman says Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has challenged the American press to "lead the fight for freedom of opinion."

Ackerman, dean of the Columbia School of Journalism, said last night in an address before a special meeting of the California Publishers' Association:

"From the day the National Industrial Recovery Act was signed by President Roosevelt to the present hour, Gen. Johnson has been fighting to control the press and substitute NRA-made opinion for public opinion.

"The fight of the newspaper publishers of the United States for the freedom of the press in the daily newspaper code deprived him of his opportunity to establish a dictatorship by law.

"Today Gen. Johnson seeks to accomplish his objective by criticizing the press over the radio in the hope and with the expectation that he can undermine public confidence in news and substitute government opinion for public opinion."

The dean called remarks made by Gen. Johnson in an address Thursday night at Chicago "a libel on every newspaper in the United States," and asked:

"What are you going to do about it, write editorials or take some action?"

He said of Johnson:

"His latest address is a direct challenge to the press to lead the fight for freedom of opinion, for the freedom of public opinion."

Undue Freedom in Dress to Be Curbed By Griswold

Shorts are the style again at all city parks, but how short they are allowed to be is up to the people of Pittsburgh, according to Ralph E. Griswold, superintendent of parks.

He said yesterday:

"The restrictions on shorts have been removed with the understanding that we will have the co-operation of the public in preventing abuse in the future. The policy of the Bureau of Parks is to make the parks safe, attractive and useable for the majority of decent people.

"Whenever there is too much freedom in the matter of dress and conduct, we feel that it is our responsibility to place the necessary restrictions to protect everybody."

Griswold explained that the bureau has been faced with the problem of controlling "disgusting conditions of immorality and abuses of privileges" in all the parks. He added:

"Conditions have been so revolting that complaints come in daily from respectable people who are driven out of the parks by these conditions."

Bands of hoodlums "who use the parks for immoral purposes" will be promptly arrested, Griswold said.

In a statement to Director of Public Works A. Marshall Bell, Griswold disclosed that the estimated loss in the parks by vandalism, theft and abuse was $76,098 this year.

An appeal is pending in the County Court, asking to determine whether it is indecent for men to play mushball on Schenley Oval without shirts. The case is listed for hearing September 14.

2 PICKETS SHOT IN MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Two men were reported shot and wounded by an ice cream truck driver today in another outbreak of violence in the truck drivers' strike.

Leo Holscher, driver for an ice cream company, reported to the National Guard that he had fired a shotgun at strike pickets stoning his vehicle. One of the stones, he said, struck him in the back.

The pickets escaped.

Twenty pickets, defying the National Guard stationed only three blocks away, swarmed over the truck while Holscher, the driver, was in a nearby building.

He turned to seize a shotgun, squeezed the trigger, and drove the attackers off. Earl Collins and George [illegible] with minor buckshot wounds, later were admitted to a hospital.

Remains in Auto, Robs Gas Station

Police today were searching for a lone robber who held up a gas station at Center and Negley avenues late last night and robbed an attendant of $35.

The attendent, Bert Strawn, Jr., 21, of 175 Forty-fourth street, gave the license number of the bandit's machine to police, who said the car had been reported as stolen. Strawn said the robber remained in his car while he pointed a gun at him and demanded his money. It was the second time the youth had been held up under similar circumstances.

BISHOP IN LINE FOR INSPECTOR

City Detective Edmond Bishop, acting inspector in the Oakland-Hazelwood district during the absence of Inspector Harry Moore, now on vacation, may be considered for the post of inspector if his work proves satisfactory, Safety Director A. Marshall Bell said today. The move, if made, would be to "inject new blood into the Oakland district," the director said.

Bell regards Bishop, who has been chief identification expert in the police department, as indispensable. His present salary of $2,450 a year would be boosted to $3,000 if he should be appointed an inspector.

Recently the Civil Service Commission notified Bishop he would have to take an examination for the job he has held for a long time, then wait his turn for appointment. Bishop resigned. When Bell was unable to have him reinstated, he appointed him a detective.

CHICAGO STRIKE HOLDS JOHNSON

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, remaining here to work on a mediation plan until "some composure" is attained, said the prospect for settlement is "hopeful." He abandoned plans to leave Chicago last night.

For five hours yesterday Johnson studied a file of proposals and counter proposals made during the 11 days of the strike. He would not discuss his conference with principals in the controversy, asserting it might "imperil settlement."

Persistent reports came from the conference room that Johnson had attempted to communicate with Frederick H. Prince, of Boston, principal stockholder of the Union Stockyards and Transit Company.

Film Colony Never Will Set Styles, She Says

By HARRISON CARROLL
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 4.—One dissenting voice—and a determined one—rose today in the recent chorus proclaiming Hollywood as the new style center of the world.

Peggy Fears, actress-producer-author and estranged wife of Jimmie Walker's pal, A. C. Blumenthal, says it simply isn't so and never will be. She demanded:

"Stars spend so much time playing games they don't have time to change for dinner. Or if an actress is working, she comes home from the studio too weary to want to do anything but step into a pair of loose pajamas.

"Another thing, actresses displaying fashion's latest whim on the screen all day know how to dress but can't be bothered to figure out anything new for their own wardrobes and, if they could, they'd probably be too bored to wear it and too weary just to dress up for their own satisfaction."

CHARGE WOMAN ABUSE VICTIM

after he took exception to some statement the minister, the Rev. Andrew Graham, of the Church of the Nazarene, had made, Negley added.

The District Attorney was told by Graham, he said, that after the flare-up, some children were brought into the home temporarily and cots for them placed in the room where the prayer meeting ordinarily was held. Herold, Negley said, took this as an excuse and halted the services, although the Rev. Graham asked that he be allowed to use the corridor.

Such services were held each Thursday night for the cripples and shut-ins.

HAMPERED IN QUIZ

Negley also told of Herold and his wife following him through the establishment several days ago. He would not allow him to be alone with any of the inmates. Said Negley:

"I stopped to talk with Peter Osterman, an old inmate, and after some slight conversation, Herold interrupted and said: "'It's 4 o'clock, Pete; you'll have to go out and milk the cows.'"

Negley said Osterman told him he was placed in the brig July 4 because he didn't shave. The prosecutor added that the aged men were forced to do heavy work.

The ousting of a nurse, Katy Millholland Dill, a veteran employe, who got $35 a month, and the substitution of another woman, was also told by Negley, who said the inmates were fond of Mrs. Dill.

Herold, the prosecutor said, humiliated Katy by forcing her to leave the table to which she was accustomed and to eat in the kitchen with the help there. In July Herold furloughed her, Negley said, after hiring the new nurse July 1.

CIVIL LIBERTIES BACKS TEACHER

Aroused by the refusal of a hearing for James J. Stewart, Plumville High School instructor, the Civil Liberties Union today prepared to aid him in his fight to obtain a permanent teacher's certificate.

An appeal to Gov. Pinchot was being considered as a result of Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of the State Department of Public Education, denying Stewart a hearing.

The instructor was refused a certificate by Supt. James J. Chapman, of Indiana County schools, on the grounds he was a Bolshevik. Stewart denies the charge. Sidney Teller, secretary of the Civil Liberties Union, announced the group's support.

BRIDGE URGED BY HOMESTEAD

Resolutions urging County Commissioners to hasten plans for the proposed Homestead high-level bridge and other Allegheny Authority projects were passed at a mass meeting of citizens in the Moose Temple, Homestead, last night. Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, presided.

Speakers were Attorney James Duff, of Carnegie; Dr. W. J. Magill, of West Homestead; State Representative Frank E. Hoffman, of Homeville; Al Cummings, general superintendent of the Duquesne Steel Works; W. D. Muir, of Duquesne; Sol Goldstein, president of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade; Mayor R. W. Ostermayer, of Clairton, and Attorney G. Roy Keltzer, of Homestead.

BOMB HOAX GIVES POSTOFFICE MYSTERY

A mail clerk discovered the suspicious package when he opened it in search of a sender's address.

The first layer was composed of old newspapers, and another was a heavy five-cent magazine. Then there was what appeared to be a fuse leading to a foot-long length of rubber hose.

Stopping for no further investigation, Assistant Supt. C. W. Crede handed it over to North Side police. They worked with caution, taking it apart, and without [illegible] the "fuse."

Inside was a brown powder. At a safe distance they tried to set it on fire. But tests proved the whole thing a dud. The fuse was only a handkerchief and the powder was brown dirt.

The police found only one thing of interest. The magazine wrapper contained two marked articles, "Will Gangs Rule the World?" and "Soak the Rich." Police believe the bomb to be the work of a crank, [illegible]onstr[illegible]

PATROLMAN JUDGE, CONNORS AND POSTOFFICE BOMB FAKE

Trolley Wage Defended As Above Tradesman's

Street car trainmen are paid higher wages than the average tradesman and are more steadily employed, the Pittsburgh Railways Company contended yesterday at continued hearings before the wage arbitration board.

The men are seeking a greater increase than the three cents an hour proposed by the company. The trainmen now receive 74 cents an hour. The average yearly income of motormen and conductors last year was $1,365, their counsel, O. David Zimring, had previously shown.

This amount, Zimring contends, is not sufficient [illegible] to support families in adequate manner.

Questioned regarding the pay to trainmen, P. H. McCance, personnel director of the traction company, said:

Asked whether these figures represent union wages, McCance replied:

"I am not familiar with whether these are all union wages. Some of the groups have collective bargaining."

Wrecked Bathhouse At Riverview Park Spoils Fun

Children of the Woods Run, Brighton road and Riverview Park districts looked longingly into the nearly dry depths of the Riverview Park pool today.

When other pools opened in June, relieving heat suffering throughout the city, this pool stayed shut, its bathhouse almost a wreck. Although the pool appears sound, the only water in it all summer has been a few inches after a hard rain.

Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, North Side Playground Association president, in whose charge the pool has been, said that vandals wrecked the bathhouse during the winter.

In this condition, she says, it is impossible to open the pool since state laws require all pools to have bathhouse and shower facilities.

Mrs. Cowley holds no hope that the pool will be opened at all this summer.

Hope to Capture Cup At Newport Race Course

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Hoping for a good race, let the wind blow where it might, Thomas Octave Murdock Sopwith, British yachtsman, had arrived here today abroad the liner Aquitania to carry on where Sir Thomas Lipton left off in the attempt to lift the international yachting cup.

The owner of the "Endeavour," the challenging racing yacht, was typically English in his reticence on predicting victory in the race with the American defender in Newport in September.

Who did he think would win? What kind of a race did he anticipate? He countered:

"How long is a piece of string? You Americans don't know what my boat will do and I don't know what your boat will do. But I'll be surprised if there's much difference between the two yachts at the finish."

Accompanying the affable British challenger was his wife, in her twenties, who will create a precedent by acting as time keeper in the big race.

Mrs. Sopwith planned the building of the "Endeavour" with her husband. She said:

"I'm going to have the greatest experience of my life sailing in the Endeavour."

FIANCEE YELLS 'LIES' TO LAKE KILLING STORY

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 4.—Robert A. Edwards, the youthful mining engineer who, police say, admitted killing his sweetheart of four years because her approaching motherhood precluded his marriage with a later love, today began his fight to escape the electric chair.

Prisoner Edwards

While funeral services were held for Freda McKecknie, 26, the Sunday school worker who was bludgeoned with a blackjack and thrown into the waters of Harvey's Lake, 21-year-old Edwards went into conference with his counsel.

Margaret Crain, pretty music teacher, of East Aurora, N. Y., whom Edwards met at a State Teachers College and intended to marry, was denied by police the opportunity of seeing or embracing her fiance.

To the story told by police, a story so closely resembling the plot of Theodore Dreiser's novel, "An American Tragedy," Miss Crain responded with cries of:

"Lies; all lies."

Indian Tribes Face Rule By Woman

MISS ALIDA C. BOWLER

Miss Alida Bowler First of Sex In Job

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The New Deal, which put a first woman in the Cabinet at the head of a diplomatic mission, will soon see another "first"—the first woman ever named a superintendent of Indian affairs.

Miss Alida Bowler, head of the juvenile delinquent unit of the Children's Bureau, will be sent to Stewart, Nev., in charge of Indian tribees. It is a combination post in fhich she will be head of the Carson Indian School and most of the Nevada tribes.

Miss Bowler has had a wide social service experience to fit her for taking the unusual post. She has made extensive Indian studies on western reservations. She once served as a social service expert with the Los Angeles Police Department.

Working with Chicago University's Miss Edith Abbott, sister of Miss Grace Abbott, former Children's Bureau chief, Miss Bowler was a researcher into welfare problems.

She will leave her present position within a few days and will assume her new duties on September 1.

FLAYS CHURCH FOR 'ARCHAIC' TEACHINGS

Declaring that the divorce laws of the United States are archaic and that the church must revise its conceptions of social relations between men and women, Dr. Jeffrey Jennings, former Mt. Washington clergyman, has filed suit for divorce in Juarez, Mexico.

For many years Dr. Jennings served as rector of the Grace Episcopal Church, Bertha street, and during that period lived in Sycamore street, nearby. In 1926 he left here and took charge of the Episcopal Church of the Atonement in Brooklyn.

In an interview in Mexico, Dr. Jennings said he had given up his charge in Brooklyn because his views on divorce differed from that of his church. His divorce action was against Bertha Jennings, whom he married in Pittsburgh 18 years ago. He declined to enter into detail for the "incompatibility" which he alleged as grounds for the divorce. His 14-year-old son, Jeffrey, Jr., is with the mother in Brooklyn.

Attacking the attitude of the church toward divorce, Dr. Jennings said:

"Intelligent people can no longer accept the dogmatic teachings of the church. Change is a fundamental law of progress. I found myself at the crossroads. I could go on teaching those things that I no longer believed, or I could resign and be honest with myself. I chose to resign.

"I didn't always feel that way about divorce. I've preached dozens of vitriolic sermons about the evils of divorce."

CORLISS LAMONT AT JAIL

LAMONT'S SON FACES JAIL

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The case of Corliss Lamont, son of Thomas W. Lamont, J. P. Morgan partner, arrested for picketing activities in Jersey City on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union, was postponed indefinitely, pending the decision of Judge Robert V. Kinkead, on the appeals of Alfred M. Bingham, son of former United States Senator Hiram Bingham, and 11 other convicted pickets.

Lamont was arrested June 16, while picketing in front of the Miller Parlor Furniture Company plant in Ocean avenue. He was charged with being a disorderly person. His case has already been postponed three times.

MAN LYNCHED BY OWN RACE

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Caddo Parish officers last night reported the lynching of Grafton Page, 30, a Negro, by members of his own race because of an alleged insult by Page to Blanch Abram, 22, a Negro girl who had been out riding with him.

The lynching, near Bethany, La., on the Texas border, was investigated by Sheriff T. R. Hughes, of Caddo Parish, and deputies.

The officers said that from evidence they gathered at the scene Page was stripped, his hands tied to a tree limb above his head and he was beaten to death with pine knots.

A blind Negro woman who lives nearby told the officers that she heard shrieks from the section. No arrests had been made.

The officers said they were told that Page had been drinking and called for the Abram girl and took her to ride in an automobile without her consent.

Okay Awaited To Bomb Sky For Rain

WAXAHACHIE, Tex., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The attempt of two former service men to produce rain by bombarding clouds with bombs was delayed today because permission for the attempt was not received from the Department of Commerce.

Wilfred Bottenfield, pilot of the plane from which the experiment was to have been made, flew here from Dallas with the information that the department could not issue a permit for such a test without obtaining the approval of Washington headquarters.

2 TO BE TRIED IN FEUD SLAYING

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP.)—District Attorney Wade K. Newell has announced that two Pittsburgh men, charged with the slaying of another Pittsburgher in a lonely mountain cabin, will be tried on a murder charge at the September term of the Fayette County court.

Charles Airhart and Henry Flowers, of Lincoln place, Pittsburgh, have been in jail since the death of Oakley Reynolds, also of Pittsburgh, more than a month ago.

In a confession which police said Airhart and Flowers signed, the two admitted a family feud had existed between Flowers and Reynolds, brothers-in-law.

The police quoted the men as saying a quarrel arose during a drinking bout in the cabin, during which Airhart knocked Reynolds to the floor and Flowers struck him with a tent stake.

DOCTOR URGES STERILIZATION

International News Service.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Sterilization of habitual criminals was recommended today by Dr. E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners' Relief Society here.

In a letter to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, where a test case of the "sterilization" law is to be made, Dr. Dudding said:

"Many crimes are the products of improper chemical reaction in the human body. The chemical makeup of the blood determines whether a man or woman will commit crimes. Nothing could be of greater public interest than to sterilize all convicts convicted for the third time of law violation."

COURT REFUSES FEE TO POWELL

Judge Samuel H. Gardner late yesterday dismissed the action brought by Attorney A. W. Powell to obtain a $12,000 fee from the Retirement Board of Allegheny County.

Judge Gardner ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the matter, based on the manner in which the action was brought, and added:

"Unless the parties can agree upon a reasonable fee the petitioner will be compelled to bring a suit at law wherein a jury may determine what is a fair and reasonable fee for the services rendered. The petition is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction."

Powell had requested the court to fix a fee.

LAWN SLEEPERS SEEIN' SNAKES

SALEM, Ia., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—That popular custom of sleeping out on the lawn these hot nights has been definitely discontinued in this vicinity for some time to come.

The reason—snakes.

Appearance of the reptiles was a mystery until word leaked out that five rattlesnakes and a number of blacksnakes escaped a week ago from a snake show staged in a local park.

GUN CLUE HOLDS OHIO SUSPECT

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 4.—David Dascanio was still held in jail here today, suspected of being the "phantom man" who killed three millworkers with a gun.

Judge Randall Buchanan, after attorneys for Dascanio charged "third degree" methods and showed marks on the prisoner's legs, said the "third degree" was not relevant, and ruled that probable cause, sufficient to hold Dascanio, had been shown.

Weather Conditions

The rainfall for the last 24 hours was light and was limited to the extreme eastern states and to the Rocky Mountain section. There is a low in the Far Northeast this morning, and a marked center over Western North Dakota (Williston, 29.58 inches), while high pressure occupies the lake region and southward over the Ohio Valley states to the Gulf. The center of the high is over the Gulf. The plains states now is causing a thunderstorm condition over that section. The weather is cool over the lake region, the Ohio Valley states and the Far Northwest and warm over the plains states. Maximum temperatures of 100 degrees or higher occurred again yesterday over a belt extending from Havre, Mont., southeastward to Arkansas. The highest temperature reported is 104 degrees at Wichita.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 0.1 foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 10.7; Pittsburgh, 10.1; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 9.3; No. 10, 9.1, and No. 12, 9.3. The dams are up.

MANIAC SOUGHT IN FARM DEATHS

WALSENBURG, Colo., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—An escaped inmate of the Colorado Hospital for the Insane was sought last night in connection with the slayings of William F. Evans, 71, and his wife, Flora, 65.

The hacked and beaten bodies of the elderly couple were discovered at their farm home north of here today.

Sheriff Harry Capps said a crazed man, reported to have fled from the Pueblo institution last Monday, had been seen in this vicinity.

Authorities investigating the double killing said they found three threatening letters among Evans' effects, but a son of the couple declared these missives were old and referred to a community squabble.

5 MILLIONAIRES THREATENED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—A gang, known to police only as "the trio," is being sought in connection with an extortion plot directed against five millionaires, among them William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills oil magnate, who was kidnaped last May and freed without the payment of ransom.

Mr. Doheny

The search for the gang was disclosed today as investigators of the District Attorney's office and United States postal inspectors attempted to trace letters in which $60,000 in cash was demanded of the five businessmen.

Besides Gettle the men who received the threats were Alexander Pantages, film impresario; E. L. Doheny, oil king; J. J. Doyle, oil and fight promoter, and Ora Monnette, vice president of the Bank of America.

The first extortion letter was delivered to Monnette Thursday. A few hours later another was delivered to Pantages. Yesterday, Doyle received a letter. Neither Gettle nor Doheny were approached, so far as is known, but their names were mentioned in the other missives.

Hospital Fails to Report Poison Case

Miss Rose Miller, 22, of 2404 Shady avenue, was in the Montefiore Hospital in serious condition today resulting from poison taken Tuesday evening in her home, according to detectives. She was admitted to the hospital Wednesday, but no report of the case had been made until city detectives investigated a tip that there was a poison case in the hospital.

Hospital attaches could offer no explanation for not reporting the case. Police said that Miss Miller took the poison by mistake. She was taken to the hospital by her brother, Dr. Harry I. Miller, they reported.

POLICE PROBERS SLOW DOWN

The Police Research Commission will coast for a while and will hold no open meetings for several weeks, Dr. Elmer D. Graper, chairman, announced today.

A conference will be held next Friday night, he said, and at succeeding conferences some witnesses may be called in where they can speak privately.

Whatever public meetings are held in the near future, it was indicated, will be of a technical nature, such as traffic, administration and similar phases of police work.

A meeting last night in the office of Dr. Albert I. Wise produced nothing, Graper said, "but conversation."

Gun Threat Charge Results in Arrest

George Pighe, 32, of 436 Sweetbriar street, Mt. Washington, was arrested early today charged with pointing firearms at a taxicab driver seeking to collect his fare.

The driver, Adolph Koch, 34, 916½ Federal street, North Side, complained to police that he drove Pighe to the latter's home, where the meter registered a $2.50 bill. Pighe had only $2, according to police reports, and invited the driver into the house for the additional money, confronting Koch with a gun as he entered.

ASKS $100,000 OF ACTRESS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Charging fraud and misconduct against his former wife, Dorothy Devore, screen actress, A. Wylie Mather, wealthy importer, filed suit today to recover $100,000 in cash and property he said he turned over to her at the time of their divorce, last August 16.

Miss Devore

Mather alleged Miss Devore accused him of misconduct with another woman in Honolulu and that Don Jacobson, a supposed friend, advised him to let her obtain a divorce. He said he then entered into a property agreement with the actress.

Protest Liquor Store Location

A protest against the establishment of a state liquor store at 710 North Homewood avenue, was on file today in Quarter Sessions Court. Date for a hearing is to be set next Thursday.

The protest is headed by the Rev. Dr. Richard Fowles and bears the signatures of 16 residents of the neighborhood. Attorney W. J. Aiken represents the objectors, who merely say that the location of a liquor store in this locality is objectionable. Time for filing the protest expired July 13, but the State Liquor Control Board, upon being notified by Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley that it had been presented after that date, requested him to accept it.

Probe Unreported Death of Woman

Deputy coroners today were investigating the death of Mrs. Alberta Mantich, 23, of 180 List street, North Side, who died Thursday of electric burns alleged received from electric treatments administered her by a doctor.

Deputy Coroner W. R. Sellers said that no report had been made until late yesterday, when the undertaker notified them. It is reported that Mrs. Mantich had gone to a physician several weeks ago for treatment of her foot. The foot was burned with an electrical instrument, the undertaker's report said.

ZOO PROBERS TO URGE IMPROVEMENTS

Need of New Cages Stressed After Inspection

Plans for an improved Highland Park Zoo were under way today following an inspection of the building by a commission recently appointed to investigate conditions of the city's animal charges.

The group toured the Zoo yesterday, headed by Ralph E. Griswold, superintendent of city parks.

After the inspection, Dr. Arthur W. Henn, of Carnegie Museum, announced that the commission will submit proposals to Council when it next meets for new cages, new animals, and general building modernization.

Preliminary studies for improvements have been made by the City Planning Commission, and at a meeting yesterday the committee voted to have the studies continued.

Arnold J. Schauman, superintendent of the Zoo, said the main correction needed is the erection of outdoor cages in which the animals may secure the benefits of sunlight and fresh air.

At present ultra-violet lights are installed in the lions' cages, but Schauman said they have proved a poor substitute for sunlight.

One project being considered

Members of the commission are Mr. Griswold, chairman; E. J. House and Dr. Henn, both of Carnegie Museum; Attorney Bayard H. Christy, secretary of the Audubon Society; former Councilman John M. Phillips; Dr. Thomas Arbuthnot, Dr. John Hellinger, naturalist; Dr. S. H. Williams, of the University of Pittsburgh, and Davis C. Burroughs, naturalist.

Farmer's Death Laid To Feud Over Well

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—(INS.)—A feud over a well located between his farm and that of Mrs. Arthur Clark, his neighbor, was blamed by authorities today for the death of George Ragen, 60, of Irving, near Pine Grove.

Although police said they learned Mrs. Clark struck Ragen on the head with a water bucket during an argument over the well Thursday, Deputy Coroner Dr. P. J. Walter said he was unable to find a mark.

LUTHERANS TO DEDICATE NEW BETHEL TOWNSHIP CHURCH

PASTOR NAMED FOR NEW PARISH

A new Bethel Township church, the Bethany Lutheran, will be dedicated at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. C. V. Sheatsley, of Columbus, O., will speak. The Rev. George Schmidt of Perrysville, president of the City Mission Society will read Scripture and conduct prayers. The Rev. Walter Knauff, of Ravenna, O., will assist in the service.

Mr. Knauff

The dedication will be followed by nightly services for a week at 8:15 p. m. The Rev. Dr. Sheatsley, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the American Lutheran Church, will show slides of mission work in India on Monday evening. The Rev. G. B. Trejan, of Avalon, will speak on Tuesday evening and the Rev. A. W. Stremel, staff member of the Luther Inner Mission Society of Pittsburgh, will speak Wednesday evening.

The Rev. Homer Knauff, of Beaver Falls, will speak on Thursday evening and the Rev. George Schuster, of the Fortieth street Lutheran Church, will speak Friday evening. The Rev. George Knauff is pastor of the newly organized congregation.

The Story of Jael ∴ CHAPTER I ∴ Told in Pictures By Dan Smith

Now Jael was the wife of Heber the Kenite, who was a friend of King Jabin of Canaan, into whose hand the Lord had sold the children of Israel when they did evil in His sight after He brought them out of Egypt.

And at this time Deborah the prophetess judged Israel. She was the wife of Lapidoth and dwelt in Mount Ephriam, and the children of Israel, who were oppressed by King Jabin, went up to Deborah for judgment.

Then Deborah sent for Barak and bade him draw toward Mount Tabor ten thousand men of Naphthali and Zebulun, and told him she would draw Sisera to the river Kishon and there deliver him into Barak's hand.

But Barak told Deborah he would not go out against Sisera unless she would go with him. Then Deborah said she would go, and that the Lord should sell Sisera into the hand of a woman at Mount Tabor. (Continued next Saturday.)

PARISH 'SONS' TO OCCUPY PULPIT

Four sons of the congregation will be the vacation supply pastors in Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, Perrysville avenue, during August.

The Rev. J. Richard Booth, son of John R. Booth, of Wilkes-Barre, a charter member of Mt. Zion, now pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Beaver Falls, will preach tomorrow. The Rev. C. Alton Piel, son of Mrs. Mary Piel, Perryview avenue, now pastor of College Church, Carthage, Ill., will preach August 12. The Rev. Edward L. Wagner, son of Joseph Wagner, of Pittsburgh, now pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Corry, Pa., will preach August 19. The Rev. William G. Leubin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Leubin, of 317 Richey street, North Side, now pastor of the Hill Top Evangelical Lutheran Church, Columbus, O., will preach August 26.

Canadian Pastor To Occupy Pulpit

The Rev. Dr. John Gibson Inkster, of Knox Church, Toronto, Canada, will preach tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, in the absence of the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney. At 10:45 a. m. the Rev. Dr. Inkster will preach the third and at 8 p. m. the fourth of a series of sermons on "The Sin of the Saints and the Sequel", namely "Dead and Alive" and "Democracy Run Mad".

Pastors to Exchange Pulpits Here Tomorrow

Son Will Take Place Of Father for Services

In addition to the influx of visiting clergymen from adjoining cities and states in Pittsburgh churches tomorrow, there will be countless inter-changes of pulpits. In the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue, John C. Ewers, 24, will fill the pulpit of his father, the Rev. Dr. John Ewers. His subject will be "What is Character?"

Dr. Crawford

The Rev. Dr. S. M. Laing, of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Stockton avenue, will preach at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Seventh United Presbyterian Church, whose pastor, the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Work, will speak in the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, Chateau street, at the same hour.

The Rev. Dr. B. F. Crawford, of the Perrysville Avenue Methodist Church, will preach in the pulpit of the Rev. Edward Bleakney in the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church tomorrow morning.

The Rev. Dr. S. E. Irvine, of New Castle, Pa., will speak in the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Perrysville avenue, at 11 a. m. tomorrow, and the Rev. Dr. David E. Culley, professor of Hebrew and Old Testament literature at Western Theological Seminary, will preach in the pulpit of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, at the same hour.

BISHOP GIVES PLAN TO END WARS

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The "press of this country is lending itself too largely to forces that tend to make war" in the opinion of Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of the Pittsburgh district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Leonard said:

"Superficial reasons for war are no longer regarded as seriously as they once were.

"It is not necessary to have another war. It not only is possible to avoid war, but possible to make war impossible."

Bishop Leonard

The Bishop gave these five steps he believes will prevent war:

"The United States owes it to herself to take a position of intelligent neutrality.

"America should warn the world that she will not deal in long-term loans or short-term credits.

"Compulsory military training should be abolished.

"American citizens in foreign countries should discourage armed conflict.

"I have great respect for the press, but the press of this country is lending itself too largely to forces that tend to make war. Press and church have the power to make war absolutely impossible."

Church Announces 'Love' as Theme

"Love" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches tomorrow. The golden-text will be: "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young."

'Strongarm' Trio Get Man's $7.50

Three men strongarmed Paul Poytner, of 1804 Center avenue, early today at River avenue and Goodrich street, North Side. They escaped with $7.50, police report.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

Bitterness Against Courts in Dakota Raises Fears

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The best North Dakota authorities feel sure that ex-Gov. Langer will change his abode to Leavenworth (by request) shortly, and, in all probability, his wife will be elected Governor.

Mr. Mallon.

Outsiders will not be able to understand how a man convicted of corruption by authorized courts stands such a good chance of being vindicated by voters.

The answer is the farmers are mad. That word is used advisedly. The courts which convicted Langer are those which upheld the farmers' mortgages. The law which made it illegal for Langer to extract political funds from federal relief workers also said it was illegal for farmers to keep their homes if they could not pay their interest.

The bald truth is the farmers are not inclined to think much of the law or the courts.

GRAVITY

That makes the underlying situation far more important than the political force it seems to be. When respect for law and justice dwindles among a majority of people in any community, the gravest political possibilities arise.

It is alarming national judicial authorities in the government. They cannot see their way clear to do much about it because, essentially, it is a state political matter. Their personal sympathies, however, are strongly against Langer and, if an opportunity offers, they may do something.

N'AWLINS

The big Democrats have marked Huey Long down as a bluffer, and a smart one. They declined to take his National Guard siege of New Orleans as seriously as it appeared to be. They believed Huey was merely playing politics with guns, and he would make sure none of them went off.

No one seemed to think much about the question of state and city rights involved, because they knew the situation was all Huey.

MONEY

The hullabaloo over George Harrison's whispered conference with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau generated new rumors about dollar devaluation, stabilization, inflation and whatever you can think of.

The truth seems to be that Mr. Harrison was filling in Mr. Morgenthau on Harrison's unofficial talks recently in Europe.

As Mr. Harrison's talks do not seem to have been very productive, the best informed people here regard his meeting with Mr. Morgenthau as similarly unimportant.

INFLATION

There is a growing feeling among the wise money boys that the administration may have to create some fresh inflationary talk sometime soon. It worked very well last year in a similar situation. When people believe prices are going up, they may loosen up and buy.

The stagnation of money is quite an important problem now. There is plenty of money in the country, but it is being hoarded in banks and elsewhere. Talk of inflation would undoubtedly encourage spending.

At the same time, no officials in responsible positions here want to take any sincerely inflationary step. They might go for some pseudo-inflationary step, but not for straight-out money inflation.

SILVER

The administration bought about a million dollars worth of silver last month. That is, the unfathomable Treasury figures indicate that its holding increased by that much. It may have bought more and sold some.

At that rate, it would probably only take a couple of hundred years to accumulate enough silver to establish its proposed parity with gold.

NOTES

Montagu Norman, alias Prof. Skinner, has been sought out by newsmen in all the dark alleys and Treasury corridors, but there are good reason for believing he will not come to Washington. His presence here would encourage rumors of stabilization between the dollar and the pound and neither side wants that yet . . . The reason von Starhemburg backed out of the Austrian chancellorship is because he felt he was too young and would rather be the power behind the throne than the power in it. That appears to be rare judgment after what happened to Dollfuss . . . Public Works expenditures have been hitting around $23,000,000 a week lately, in actual cash spent. That is a top figure which should be stimulating purchasing power.

DR. GEORGE P. FAUST

GERMANY PRAYS IN HINDENBURG DEATH CRISIS

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—A note of apprehension was sounded today as Germany, irrespective of religion and race, mourned her beloved Paul von Hindenburg.

Johannes Adolf Cardinal Bertram in a message at Breslau ordering church bells rung in tribute to the dead President said:

"In this exceedingly grave hour our prayers that gracious God may grant our people and our fatherland days of happiness and inner peace are more earnest than ever."

A death mask of von Hindenburg was taken by Prof. Joseph Thorak, of Berlin. The body of the old warrior-statesman lies in a huge room of his estate here, awaiting burial.

Germany was undecided where he would be buried. It was first announced he would be placed in the National Memorial at Tannenberg, scene of the great victory over Russia in the World War. A nationa' funeral will be held there Tuesday.

But members of the family have indicated he would be buried in the family plot here, in accordance with a wish the President once expressed.

WILL ELUDES SEARCH

Berlin heard rumors that inability to find von Hindenburg's will was responsible for the uncertainty.

The body may be brought back to Neudeck after the services at Tannenberg, where Adolf Hitler will eulogize his predecessor.

An expression of von Hindenburg's stabilizing influence in the nation was voiced by Franz von Papen, vice chancellor until he was named special envoy to Vienna last week. Von Papen said:

Von Papen spent 45 minutes in the death chamber yesterday.

Von Papen was a favorite of von Hindenburg and it was reported after the June 30 revolt the President sent a stern warning that the vice chancellor must not be molested.

CHURCH BELLS TOLL

All church bells—Catholic as well as Protestant—are being tolled throughout Germany for an hour each evening until the day of the funeral.

The first Jewish newspaper to appear since the President's death, Judische Rundshau, paid tribute to von Hindenburg as one "who always saw the fatherland as including all."

Today

dows rattled, pictures were found out of plumb on the walls. That is an old country and the rocky coast has probably done its important "settling down" in ages long past.

MORE IMPORTANT than the gentle earthquakes, in Maine is an epidemic of rabies among foxes, that, in their madness, have attacked children, dogs, cows, even biting automobiles.

Trappers will try to exterminate them over an area of 300 square miles. All wild animals, except deer, may have to be killed.

In England there is no rabies, dogs and other animals do not go mad, for the common-sense-reason that every dog taken into England is kept in quarantine until it is proved free of rabies. We don't do things as thoroughly as that in this country.

IN KANSAS CITY, the Rev. L. M. Birkhead, a Unitarian, says "I don't think prayer could do anything to change the weather." He suggests a scientific test, he, with Chief Justice Hughes, Clarence Darrow, H. L. Mencken, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Professor Millikan of cosmic rays, and a number of clergymen whom he names, joining in the experiment.

SEVEN HUNDRED taxi drivers, known as "independent nighthawks," after much oratory and complaining, form a union for protection. You would hardly guess the nature of one complaint.

Drivers allege that they pick up "souses," which mean drunken men, late at night and have trouble in delivering them to their addresses.

This happened to Sol. Leventhal: "My radio went dead the other night and a gang made me sing all the way over to the Palisades."

Taxi drivers, especially all-night drivers, see more than anybody else of the wrong side of human nature.

AUSTRIA HESITATES in the series of "quick hangings." A young man of 24, Edward Hoenisch, found with explosives, but not accused of using them, was tried yesterday and sentenced to be hanged last night. The sentence was changed to life imprisonment.

Not unreasonably, Austrian law says that possession of dynamite is proof of a plan to kill and the punishment is death.

WHILE OUR Navy Department talks about cutting down the number of airplanes because "we don't need them in peace," Mussolini, in a country not as rich as this, appropriates $102,840,000 for air defense and Italy already has an air force that makes ours look like child's play.

RINTELEN DYING TRIAL BLOCKED

International News Service.

VIENNA, Aug. 4.—The new Austrian government will be spared the embarrassment of trying Dr. August Rintelen, Austrian ambassador to Rome, for high treason, it appeared today.

Dr. Rintelen

Dr. Rintelen, who was named as Chancellor Dollfuss' successor by the Nazis in a broadcast when they seized the government radio station at the same time they invaded the chancellery and murdered the Chancellor, suffered an apoplectic stroke during the night.

Paralysis is settling in his left side (the heart side) and it became evident that the 70-year-old diplomat, who shot himself in the chest when the Nazi putsch failed, would not be able to survive.

He is in the hospital of the Vienna prison, where he was removed for safe keeping after 40 armed Nazis tried to invade the Municipal Hospital and rescue him.

PAPEN SOUNDS HITLER PRAISE

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Confidence in Adolf Hitler as "the leader of new Germany" was expressed today by Franz von Papen, until recently vice chancellor and a critic of extreme Nazism, after a visit to the deathbed of President Paul von Hindenburg.

Von Papen said Hitler would serve as "a trustee of President von Hindenburg's noblest tradition and history who will continue the work to which the life of the sainted dead marshal was devoted."

The statement was regarded as reassuring to Nazis, since von Papen had been considered a leader of conservative Germany. He was named special envoy to Austria by Hitler last week.

Hitler, Supreme in Life As New Caesar, Plans To Rule Also in Death

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Hitler, supreme in life, is now preparing to extend his power over the German people after his death. He is going to choose his own successor.

He is the first modern dictator to do so. But he is the first modern dictator to become a Caesar.

For Germany has had a revolution during the last 48 hours just as important as the revolution that brought the National Socialists to power. It may sound paradoxical, but it is true that Hitler has not only staged a coup d'etat against the last remnants of the old Weimar State Constitution, but has made a revolution that will equally destroy National Socialism as Germany has known it for the last 18 months.

HAIL TO 'CAESAR!'

Germany has passed from National Socialism to Caesarism. It will still be called National Socialism, just as in Russia they still refer to Communism. But just as in Russia they began by calling their fundamental doctrine Marxism, then Communism, then Leninism and finally Stalinism, just so in Germany it is necessary now to describe both the philosophy and prestige of the new state as Hitlerism and Hitler as the Caesar.

In proposing to name his successor, Hitler has adopted one of the most characteristic practices of the Caesars of Old Rome. In his Reichstag speech after the "blood bath" of June 30, he named himself the supreme judge with power of life and death over the German people. That was Caesarism.

SUPREME WAR LORD

He has now named himself the supreme war lord as well as the civil head of the state. That, too, is Caesarism.

But in taking it upon himself to name his successor who will have all the power he had and, theoretically at least, be just as difficult to dislodge, Hitler, himself childless, has undertaken to establish a non-hereditary dynasty. It is something neither Mussolini, Stalin, Pilsudski nor Mustapha Kemal have dreamed of doing.

This is the meaning of Hitler's edict that he would select his own vice-Hitler, his own vice president. For that man will be Hitler's successor.

HITLER COVETS U.S. APPROVAL

world reaction to the situation, Hitler is understood to be especially desirous of having America understand his motive and plan.

Some believe he will give assurances that this accession to complete domination does not mean a more radical political program.

The speech is anticipated as a political document of unique importance, revealing the course of Hitler's future leadership. Some observers wondered if this leadership might not take Hitler to a throne, comparing his steps to those of Napoleon.

VOTE PLEAS LIMITED

In designating August 19 as the date of a plebiscite in which he hopes to gain the approval of the German nation for his acquisition of new power, Hitler has sharply limited his opportunities for effective pleas for votes.

The period of national mourning for the late President will extend to August 14. In the interests of good taste, it was pointed out, Hitler cannot campaign too obviously for public favor, making it necessary to seek indirect methods.

The personal oath of allegiance to Hitler, taken by the army and navy, also was administered secretly Thursday to the Schutz Staffel, or picked Nazi guards.

STRATOSPHERE LETTER SAFE

International News Service.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Aug. 3.—A "stratosphere letter" the first of its kind on record, was received today by Dr. W. F. G. Swann, director of the Bartol Research Laboratory, of the Franklin Institute.

Dr. Swann

The letter had been carried aloft by the Kepner-Stevens stratosphere balloon and mailed from the ground after the bag crashed.

Felicitating the scientist, who devised most of the instruments carried aloft in the ill-fated balloon, the letter, signed by Maj. W. E. Kepner, Capt. A. W. Stevens and Capt. O. A. Anderson, read:

"This letter brings you cordial greetings from the stratosphere.

"We wish to convey to you the sincere greetings and good wishes of the National Geographic Society and the United States Army Air Corps and our own personal salutations."

Dr. Swann said the letter was taken from the grounded gondola of the Explorer and airmailed from near the point of the fall.

WAGES IN JUNE SHOW LOSS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The Labor Department reported today factory workers earned an average of 1.6 per cent less in June than in May.

The report covered 23,347 factories employing 3,750,605 workers. Weekly earnings averaged $19.51.

Among the 90 industries surveyed, 41 showed gains in average weekly earnings. Cement had a gain of 8.5 per cent; chewing and smoking tobacco, 7.1, and plumbers' supplies, 5.9.

The largest decline was in cotton goods, 11.5 per cent.

HITLER 'PURGE' SEEN DOOMING WAR THREAT

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO

The Foremost Historian of Europe.

GENEVA, Aug. 4.—"The disarmament conference ought to meet in plenary session and proclaim Hitler its honorary president. He has found the true formula for disarmament at last!"

"That is a paradox which requires some explanation. I don't understand!"

"What did he do on the 30th of June? He massacred the leaders of his army. If all governments followed his example Europe would soon be disarmed."

This strange conversation took place at Geneva between two persons closely connected with the Disarmament Conference. We will call them A and B. After A's reply B went off laughing, but rather frightened.

A's witticism was really rather violent. It contains, however, in the form of a jest a much simpler truth than the world's mind has yet grasped.

FEAR OF INVASION

Round what does the whole situation of Europe and the world revolve today? Round the fear that the Germany of 1934 may repeat what Germany did in 1914. Germany's possible revenge is the nightmare that weighs upon our epoch since the coming to power of Hitler and his party; and this nightmare has already let loose a new rivalry in armaments similar to that which led to the war of 1914.

And yet nothing seems more chimerical to me than this fear. If man would not always march toward the future, with his head turned toward the past, everyone would easily make a reflection which, on the contrary, no one makes.

For Germany to attack France or Poland, or both, she would have to mobilise two or three million men. But can a state whose head is reduced to massacring the leaders of his personal army mobilise these two or three million men?

LEADERS MASSACRED

If he has massacred the leaders of his army it is because he feared that they would disobey him or turn their arms against him. And if he has this fear concerning a relatively small army, recruited from among his partisans, how could he hope to exact obedience from a much larger army, composed of all sorts of men, including his enemies, Communists, Socialists, Catholics, Jews?

The military organization achieved by the West during the nineteenth century is monstrous, inhuman and absurd. To raise armies of millions of men by arming all citizens from the age of 18 to 45 is one of the most extravagant and dangerous ideas the human brain has conceived.

SMALL WARS ONLY

But there is at least one advantage in this organization—that in order to make a war of aggression with such armies one needs a very rich government, very strong, very sure of its people, as was the German government in 1914. Such a government no longer exists in any part of Europe.

That is why I do not believe in a war of great powers. Certain small powers might still go to war between themselves, if they were allowed to do so. Colonial wars are still possible—between Italy and Abyssinia, for example. But the great powers of Europe will remain quiet, even if they throw away millions on useless armaments. None of them is any longer capable of mobilising millions of men, except for a war of defence.

NEW RUSSO-JAP CRISIS LOOMS

International News Service.

TOKIO, Aug. 4.—The Japanese government is about to serve an "ominous" warning on Russia, listing a chapter of "unfriendly" acts, the influential newspaper Nichi Nichi declared today.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and War Minister Gen. Hayashi are preparing to adopt a vigorous policy toward the Soviet government, the Nichi Nichi declared.

First—That Soviet airplanes frequently have crossed the borders of Manchukuo, the Manchurian state set up by the Japanese government.

Second—That Soviet airplanes had repeatedly attacked Manchukuoan steamers on the Amur and Sungari rivers.

Dictators Win Even If People Vote Other Way

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The dictator form of government may be autocratic. But it brings quicker results than selling a hay barn on fire.

Any dictatorial person can gain the highest office by grabbing it.

Two weeks later you hold an election to see how the people like it.

If they like it you accept the nomination. If they don't like it you still accept the nomination.

It's democracy in reverse. But it must be very lonely for a poor old dictator. Not once in his campaign can he refer to his distinguished opponent.

It all comes out even in the end. Twenty years ago we wrote "The Price of Fame." They named a cantaloupe after Jenny Lind; a French pastry after Napoleon and a herring after Bismarck.

LAST THOUGHTS FOR KAISER

Universal Service.

His last thoughts were devoted exclusively to his "supreme war lord," and the first official visitor admitted to the death chamber today was the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, who brought a personal message of sympathy to the family from his father, the ex-Kaiser.

VIENNA 'BOOK PUTS BLAME ON GERMANY

By ALFRED TYRNAUER

International News Service.

VIENNA, Aug. 4.—Charges that high officials of the Hitler government in Germany encouraged and supported last week's Nazi putsch which led to the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss and cost more than 150 lives are contained in a document the Austrian government is soon to publish.

This document, International News Service learned today, is to be submitted to the League of Nations and to the British, French and Italian foreign offices because those three powers publicly proclaimed their intention of maintaining the independence of Austria.

The documents, based on an investigation just concluded by Gen. Wintersteln, will be published within a fortnight in the form of a "Brown Book."

They charge that last week's putsch was organized at Munich with the knowledge and sufferance of the highest German officials.

Large quantities of explosive and hand grenades, undoubtedly of German origin and some bearing German army labels, were found in the possession of captured Austrian Nazis, the government will allege.

Many couriers have been intercepted, carrying instructions from Munich to Nazi leaders in provincial cities with specific plans for the Austrian Nazi uprising.

It is even hinted that the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss was carried out according to plans outlined in Munich.

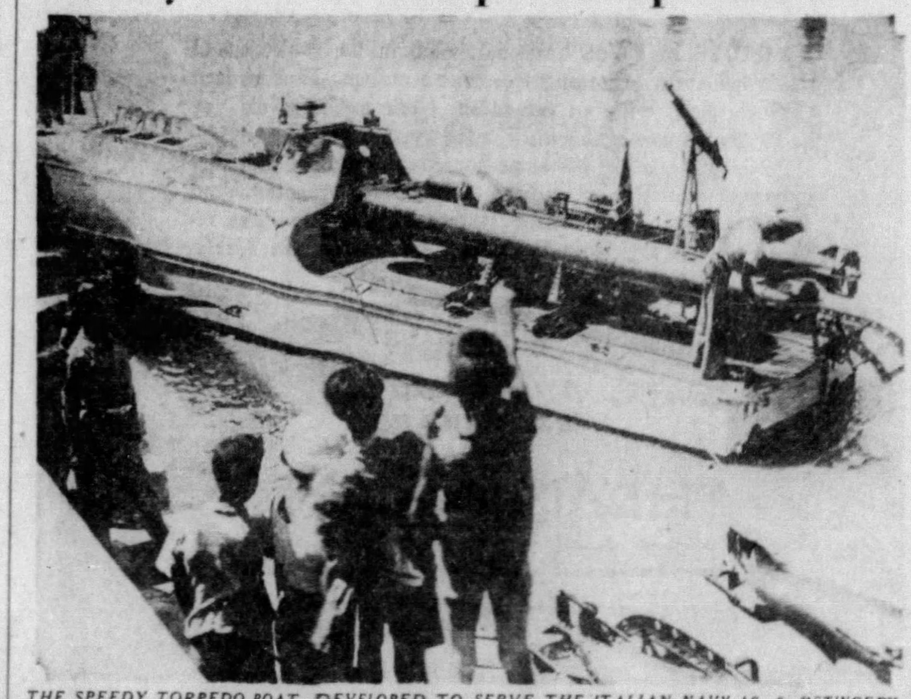
Italy's New Torpedo Speedboat



THE SPEEDY TORPEDO BOAT DEVELOPED TO SERVE THE ITALIAN NAVY AS A "STINGER"

One of the new speedboats, armed only with two machine guns to ward off airplanes, developed for the Italy navy. They are extremely fast, seaworthy, would be used to dart away from destroyers and cruisers, speed at an enemy ship, then launch a torpedo astern and turn out of the way of that deadly weapon. Speed Race Rules; N. Y. Sets Markers For Airplane Pilots

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

How our Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing is growing!

I just received a wire from Lawrence Shaw, national director, that he wants the Junior Birdmen organization to number 100,000 by September 1.

We can only do that through your help and by you going out and working and bringing in new members. Keep in mind also that when you bring in a new member to make our national organization larger you are also increasing the enrollment in our Pittsburgh wing.

Every boy or girl, remember, who brings in five members will get their name on our honor roll and become a member of our Pursuit Squadron—that special group of members who are on their toes doing things.

Why not organize a Flight Squadron? It takes but seven members besides yourself. Become a squadron commander and have a lot of fun building planes with your friends and meeting together.

The Junior Birdmen commander and captain bars are certainly smart looking. I know that you would be proud to wear such a bar attached to your wing pin.

Model Plane Race At County Fair

I announced the first model plane race ever to be held in the Pittsburgh district in yesterday's column. I have more news on it today.

We want every one of you boys and girls who can build a plane to enter it. It's going to be one of the most outstanding meets ever held for the youth of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

I will tell you the prize—which you will certainly think worth trying for—and the rules in our special column on Wednesday.

In order that you can start building your planes now I will give you the two most important rules. Here they are:

PLANES—They must be powered with a rubber motor.

LAUNCHING—Planes must be launched from a minature runway to be set up on the field.

Planes powered with gasoline or compressed air are not eligible. You can enter a tractor, pusher, fuselage type or any kind of plane you want.

The meet will be held on the South Park athletic field over a 132-foot course. I will give you the contest rules later.

Oh, yes, I don't want to forget to tell you that you can enter as many models as you desire.

It will be a wide open contest and should bring forth some very interesting speed models. This is a contest that will take ingenuity in design and will require some thought.

ALL MEMBERS ENTERING THE SPEED RACE SHOULD SEND ME A PENNY POSTCARD BEFORE THE MEET, GIVING THEIR NAME AND MEMBERSHIP NUMBER. I WILL IMMEDIATELY MAIL YOU YOUR RACING NUMBER. WHO WANTS 13?

New York Members Work on Air Markers

In an effort to make the air safer for Uncle Sam's fliers many members of the New York American wing are setting up simple, inexpensive identifying markers in every nook and cranny of the Metropolitan area of New York.

The United States Department of Commerce in Washington yesterday completed its special tests of the Junior Birdmen markers. They got stones and laid out an area large enough to carry the words:

"WASHINGTON."

They painted the stones in the aviation color—international orange, which is visible against grass or turf in Summer and against earth or snow in winter. Then they sent up planes to various heights to test the visibility.

They say the experiment was a perfect and complete sucess.

From Director of Air Commerce Vidal's office will come in a day or so the exact specifications for these markers, and full directions as to the rooftop markers which Captain Frank Hawks and George Burrell, the famous stunt flier, are so enthusiastic about.

[illegible] young men and women [illegible] district no doubt also want to [illegible] up this assistance of your country's air service though our local wing. A little later you will find full details in this paper on the markers, with pictures and illustrations.

I'll see you tomorrow.

Announcers Rock the Boat

Two CBS announcers, with bathing suits and waterproof microphones, go overboard into the World's Fair lagoon with the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, Rush, between 4 and 4:20 this afternoon to give CBS-WJAS listeners a first-hand description of a "capsize drill."

* * *

The Siberian Singers, noted male octet, under the direction of Nicholas Vasilieff, and with Vladimir Heifetz as accompanist, are heard in their weekly recital over an NBC-WCAE network tonight at 10:45.

Featured on the program is an old Ukranian folk song, "Giandzya," followed by "Credo," by Grentchaninoff; a Gypsy song, "Goodbye" and "Legend of Caucasia."

* * *

The radio premiere of LaSalle Spier's "Impressions of the Bowery" and Hans Kindler's arrangements of two unusual Seventeenth Century Dutch melodies, are played by the Philadelphia Summer Concerts Orchestra over the CBS-WJAS air tonight from 8:30 to 10:30.

* * *

Barker's stirring "A Vagabond of the Sea" is listed among the selections sung by John Herrick, popular New England baritone, during his recital over KDKA tonight at 6:45.

* * *

Fred de Malo and his brothers, with their songstress, Teresa Brillante, return to WWSW this evening at 7, after a two weeks' engagement in Detroit, where they did a daily broadcast over WNBC.

J. Anthony Smythe plays the role of Mr. Barbour during "One Man's Family," heard over WCAE tonight at 9.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, ladies and gentlemen!

The recent newspaper picture of Commissioner McGovern, depicting him at the South Park golf links in one of those white hats that we associate with jungle explorers brought remarks from Overbrook. The people there say that such white hats are known as "elephant hats" or "desert derbies."

Another letter said that with that kind of a bonnet, Mr. McGovern looked like the Globe Trotter himself.

The Commissioner will soon have an opportunity to explain his millinery in person when I invite him to talk about the forthcoming South Park fair.

In answer to those who have written about pensions and widows' assistance, the proper office for handling such matters is the Mothers' Assistance Fund, New County Office Building, Diamond and Ross streets, Pittsburgh. The executive secretary is Miss Margaret C. Miller.

Sunday Column Only!

Beginning Sunday the birdmen column will appear in the Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph only and not in the daily paper as at present.

The new Sunday birdmen feature will no doubt be heartily welcomed by every boy and girl.

We are planning a special birdmen story, however, for this coming Wednesday concerning the South Park model racing contest.

Patricia Norman

Network listeners, as well as the KDKA audience, now hear Patricia Norman's songs on the Paul Pendarvis programs Monday and Friday nights at 12:30. In addition to their NBC broadcasts, they entertain the local tuners-in and the Urban Room diners and dancers every evening at 11:30.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Other early bets — Baron Elliott's band at 6:15 and Gregorio Scalzo at 6:45.

Unknown Stooge 'Wows' Richman's Audience

By JOHN B. KENNEDY
(Writing for Alexander.)

Harry Richman once had a puzzling evening.

He had told one of his early sponsors on the air that carrying a full hour with songs and gags was a pretty tough assignment.

They gave him assistance, but for one particular program, Harry thought that the script was a little antique.

"I don't think I'd better risk it," said Richman. "A lot of these gags are not lifted, they've been excavated."

It was explained to Harry that there wasn't enough time to change the script. So he went on—at the NBC's Times Square studio.

He sang with his usual gusto—but he wasn't so gustful when it came to the gags.

Yet the first crack had them almost in the aisles. The second brought laughter in bucketloads and the third—torrents. Richman, perplexed, said to somebody: "What can this be? Are they right who say that the public wants old gags?"

Harry is a curious showman. He went out front to see why this unfunny stuff wowed 'em. He soon had an explanation.

PUSH-OVER

I think this illustrates radio in fact. That the simple souls who worship readily do not represent the vast, intelligent radio audience; which may not outnumber the "push-over" audience, but is more important—to sponsors and to radio.

The business is a combination of show business and advertising business—both amazingly subject to fads—and to fickle patronage.

Of all the enormous and complicated effort put forward to cram the air and ears of a nation, the net result is that public amusement has definitely progressed through radio.

Track down your New York sophisticate who says he doesn't bother to listen-in, and you'll find that sooner or later he betrays acquaintance with a wide variety of programs and radio personalities.

* * *

A GOOD JOB

From my observation of radio as it is run in the United States, its virtues balance its defects and the resulting equation is tolerable and at times impresses as entertainment comparable to any other medium.

When radio is at its worst (there's no need to be specific, we all occasionally snap at the dial) it is no worse than other approaches to public favor.

When radio is at its best—with fun, song, music or other utterance—it is unexcelled by any art save in the fault of transitoriness.

Radio has done and is doing a very good job. It is run as conscientiously as its feverish routine permits.

And if at some impatient moment and mood you shriek for vengeance at something that goes on the air, you should hear some of the things the broadcasters keep off the air!

'Our Family' Drama On Air Tonight

Tonight's dramatic episode in "Our Family," heard over WCAE, at 7 o'clock, illustrates that a child's whim carried more weight than a father's command.

Baseball scores are announced over WCAE at 6:30 and 11 p. m.

THUG RETURNS TO CALL POLICE

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—On July 24 a man held up Miss Jane Mixter in her candy store and robbed her of $10.

Last night as she was closing the shop the man entered again and said:

"Call the police. I want to surrender."

He turned out to be Bernard J. Allard, 24, unemployed father of two children. He told police:

"I've been out of work for nine months and my wife and kids were hungry. It was my first robbery—and my last. I didn't have a gun. I just held my hand in my coat pocket.

"I bought groceries with the money. I didn't know it would bother me so much, but I couldn't stick it out. I had to give up."

KEEN RECIPES FOR BOTH SIDES OF DIET

Shut an eye to calories, mes femmes, for today's first prize winner has to do with all this is luscious and sweet. Eat today and be sorry tomorrow if your figure demands it. You will try in vain to resist Banana Cream Cake, I know. If your will-power wins, however, you will be rewarded by finding a delectable recipe for stuffed tomatoes, which might find favor on any keep-slim diet.

As August gets under way, may I plead with you again, ladies, to write your estimable recipes on only one side of the paper, with your name at the top of the sheet, please. You will understand, I am sure, how greatly this will facilitate selection from the vast assortment of recipes received. Whenever possible contain the recipe in a single sheet, with name at top.

Honorable mention awards of cook-books were discontinued yesterday, it was announced. For the present six prizes will be awarded daily, a $5 first prize and five $1 prizes. This narrows selection and makes competition keener. On your toes for prizes in August, my friends.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MARY ELLEN LUCKE,
3832 Bates street, Pittsburgh.
BANANA CREAM CAKE

Two eggs.
Seven-eighths cup sugar.
Pinch of salt.
One cup flour.
Two and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One-third cup hot milk.
Grated rind of a lemon.
Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar and egg yolks. Mix flour, salt and baking powder. Add alternately with the milk. Add flavoring (lemon rind) and bake in two layers, 15 to 20 minutes.

Filling

Two-thirds cup sugar.
One-third cup flour.
Salt.
Two bananas.
One egg.
One cup milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Mix dry ingredients and add scalded milk and beaten egg. Cook in double boiler until quite thick. Let cool. Add vanilla and the two bananas which have been mashed with a fork. When cold spread between layers. May be covered on top and sides with whipped cream.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. ISABELLE M'LAREN,
333 Lenaure street, Monessen.
CABBAGE SOUFFLE

Three cups finely shredded cabbage.
One-half cup finely sliced celery.
Three tablespoons melted butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup milk.
Three eggs.
One-half cup grated cheese.
Salt, pepper.
Method — Combine cabbage and celery, cook in small quantity of boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Combine butter and flour, add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water until smooth and thick. Add slightly beaten egg yolks. Stir until blended. Remove from fire. Add cheese, stir until melted, season to taste; add vegetables, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into well oiled baking dish. Set in a pan of warm water. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until an inserted knife comes out clean. Combine two tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour and one can tomato soup. Cook over hot water until thick and smooth. Serve with the cabbage souffle.

MRS. JAMES WELSH,
1314 Highman street, Pittsburgh.
STUFFED TOMATOES

Scoop out centers of six large tomatoes. Cut corn from three or four cooked ears. To the corn add one green pepper chopped fine. Mix with mayonnaise, salt and pepper to taste. Add centers of tomatoes. Fill tomatoes. Chill and serve on lettuce leaves.

MARGARET EWING,
7935 Tioga street, Pittsburgh.
STUFFED HEART BRAISED WITH PRUNES

Wash one large calf's heart or two small hearts thoroughly in cold water and sprinkle the inside with a little salt. Stuff with:
One small onion, minced.
Two cups bread crumbs.
One cup meat stock.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One tablespoon bacon fat.
Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon chopped celery or one-half teaspoon celery salt.
Two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce.
Skewer or tie into shape with a larding needle. Run five or six small strips of bacon or pork through the side. Dredge the heart lightly with flour and sear on all sides in bacon and ham drippings. Add two cups water or stock, cover closely and cook slowly in a moderate oven (325 to 350 degrees) until meat is tender.
Half an hour before removing from oven, add eight to ten well-soaked prunes with the water in which they have been soaked. Add one-fourth of a lemon cut into thin slices. When ready to serve place the heart on a platter and arrange prunes as a border. Garnish with pieces of lemon and sprigs of parsley.

MRS. D. W. STEELE,
Leechburg, R. D. 2.
HUCKLEBERRY PIE

Three cups fresh huckleberries.
One and one-eighth cups sugar.
Two and one-half tablespoons flour.
Dash of salt.
One tablespoon butter.
One teaspoon lemon juice (if entirely ripe berries are used).
Pastry.
Pick over, wash and drain berries. Mix with sugar, flour and salt. Line a pie tin with pastry. Fill with mixture and dot with butter. Moisten edges of pastry, and cover with a top crust. Press edges firmly, brush with milk and bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes and then at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

MRS. SUSAN ECKSTINE,
Johnstown.
BLACK BOTTOM PIE

Two cups hot milk.
Five tablespoons flour.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Four egg yolks or two whole eggs.
Two teaspoons vanilla.
Grated dipping chocolate about one cup or more if needed.
Whipping cream.
Scald milk, mix flour, sugar and salt. Slowly add hot milk. Cook 20 minutes over hot water. Beat egg yolks. Slowly pour hot mixture on them. Cool and add vanilla. Cover a baked pie shell with a layer of grated chocolate while pie crust is still warm. Allow it to melt, then cool and set. Pour cream filling into this when cool. Cover cream filling with a layer of grated chocolate. Before serving cover top of pie with sweetened whipped cream.

MARRIAGE BY FORCE Drives Girls to Suicide!

Nine Chinese Girls Drown Themselves in Death Pact As a Protest Against the Ancient Custom of Bride Slavery

All arrangements for a marriage in China are made by the parents of the bride. She does not even see her groom until the wedding.

BRIDES in China have no voice in the selection of their husbands, according to ancient custom. But modern Chinese girls, with an education their mothers did not have, disapprove of this antiquated system.

Nine girls, all of the same household, showed their disapproval recently by ending their lives in protest. And their sacrifice may end the system they despised, as revealed in an article in next Sunday's American Weekly.

The nine girls, roped together in chain-fashion, jumped from a crag overtopping the swift river. Before rescuers could reach them, the rapid current quickly swept their bodies down the stream.

Franchot Tone is keeping company with Joan Crawford. Let's clap calloused mitts . . . Jean Harlow is too, too divoon . . . Peggy Pears has a red wig—but so has Harpo Marx, for that matter . . . Bob Montgomery denies it again . . . Gary Cooper is very TALL . . . So is the Empire State Bldg . . . Flash! The Bing Crosbys had twins recently. This IS EXCLUSIVE! . . . Shirley Temple is so unspoiled . . . Norman Foster is in Hawaii—but so is Honolulu!

I see by the papers that Bill Powell and Carole Lombard got their divorce . . . You first read that here . . . That was Sammy Cruddd and Gussie Foofff at the Coffee Pot last night . . . That eastern columnist was ALL WRONG when he said that Pandro Berman started his career sweeping studios at RKO . . . All eastern columnists are terrible . . . Postmaster Farley was the guest of honor at a party thrown by the Warners . . . Farley looked as though he wished he were back in the Washington (D. C.) heat . . . My hat, Mrs. Mefoofsky! The Ritz Brothers are coming on . . . Rudy Vallee and Alice Faye act as though they like each other . . . I'll bet there's a romance IN THE OFFING . . . Mrs. Roosevelt is the wife of the President!

Dillinger dined at the Automat yesterday.

Wonder who that gal was standing on the corner of 42nd St. and B'way one day two years ago? . . . I mean the one wearing that hat, dress, coat, shoes and stockings . . . Gordon & Revel's newest song is beautiful, it will certainly be a hit . . . Remind me to hear it sometime . . . Irving Berlin is married to Ellin Mackay, whose father is connected in some way with Western Union . . . Jack Pediculous and Sophie Phlugg are on the stove and will tell it to a preacherogue . . . Johnny Weissmuller and Lupe Velez were at the fights together—so there . . . Whatever became of Earl Carroll? . . . Be sure and send him a telegram—collect . . . Wish I could think of something important ENOUGH TO PUT IN CAPITAL LETTERS.

It's a boy over at the Alexander Pantages! . . . Lew Brown was saying that if he saw a certain producer he would punch him in the kisser . . . So what happened? . . . So nothing happened . . . The producer walked into the Casino de Paree and Lew embraced the guy and said: "How are you?" . . . Lew must be getting old . . . Who remembers all the way back when a Jerry Wald was a cinch to sock? . . . What can Lew do to me—I'm 3,000 miles away—ha, ha! . . . That Paramount Studio cop certainly is a smart guy . . . He pinned a ticket on a newspaperman's roadster the other day for parking in front of the studio . . . So what happened? . . . So this occurred . . . The newspaperman sent the ticket to the studio press dep't which paid it!

Personal nomination for the most dapper man on Broadway: Heywood Broun . . . Two word description of Milton Berle—Milton Berle! . . . A dog is the best pal a man can have . . . Coffee keeps me awake if I drink it for breakfast . . . My old aunt in Pishtush, Missouri, has never seen a white man . . . Most of us go wondering around seeking the blue horizon . . . And for what? . . . Oh, to be back in a small town—where I practically starved to death . . . Give my regards to the old town pump . . . Because I'm going to stay right here!!! . . . Joe Penner coined the expression: "Do you want to buy a duck?" . . . Miriam Hopkins, believe it or not, reminds me of Miriam Hopkins . . . I can never tell Stepin Fetchit and J. Weissmuller apart.

Buttercups to Ruth Etting, Gordon & Revel and Ruth Etting . . . Daisies to any night club—if I mention 'em maybe they'll put my name in their advertisements . . . Flower pots to the theme song in Universal's picture "Romance in the Rain," a heluva swipe from "This Is a Night for Love" (from "Cat and the Fiddle") . . . Scallions to Gordon & Revel and Ruth Etting . . . Pecans to you.

Purely personal tripe: The skittish brightness in Queenie Smith's eye—the good one . . . Now for a hot grapple with a long, cool lemonade. What! No opium? . . . Walter Winchell, the P. S. 184 boy who made good in the big city . . . I have never printed a word that has hurt anyone . . . That I liked!! . . . Borros Morros is so plump . . . Which reminds me of Kate Smith . . . Sidney Solomon is such a sweet feller. . . . Ask anyone who has come in contact with him! . . . Most of us go wandering around seeking the blue horizon. Didn't I mention that one already? . . . Well, what of it? . . . I've been repeating myself for years—nobody's hep yet . . . You never see any gossip in my column, by golly . . . No nasty things, at all . . . Maybe a hard slap now and then—but I must give vent to self-expression once in a while . . . These B'way columnists are beasts.

That dance teacher certainly is getting away with murder. . . . He used to take advertisements in the amusement pages of the daily papers, but now he hires several alleged wits, who obviously have sharp scissors, and they send things with his name signed to them to various paragraphers. Often they are published—but not here.

What the deuce am I doing, anyhow? . . . I meant this to be a burlesk after pouring over other columns . . . I said pouring! . . . And yet the newest addition to the long list of chatter columning is one of the world's best literary men—Maxim Gorky . . . The fact that Gorky now is doing a gossip column in a Soviet newspaper is news, indeed. Gorky explained to American correspondents in Russia that he is doing a gossip column to show the reason why Soviet literature is slipping, and among other items about his comrades he penned these: "Comrade Leontovich beats his wife. . . . Comrade Vonahvof cheats at cards and gets drunk . . . Comrade Bergerman is a married man but he also has a blonde on the side. He is a bum!" . . . A sort of Maxim silencer? . . . The story about him said: "Gorky goes the American columnists one better" . . . Mebbe so, mebbe so.

Tech Plays Tonight

The department of drama, Carnegie Institute of Technology, presented its last offering of the first summer season in the theater of the College of Fine Arts yesterday afternoon and evening. The bill will be repeated tonight. It includes "The Death of Tintagiles," Maeterlinck's drama in five scenes, "Tom Cobb" or "Fortune's Toy," by W. S. Gilbert, first presented in London in 1875, in the St. James Theater.

The small group of students who have helped to launch the first summer session of the department of drama is composed almost entirely of school teachers and prep school students, most of whom have never acted before.

The cast for "The Death of Tintagiles" includes Deana Rymer and Nancy Steigerwalt, alternating in the title role, and Mary Graham, Marie Noir, Olivia Horner, Cecille Haser, Christine Swint, Dorothy Zeigler and Walter Derdeyn. Miss Swint is assisting in the direction.

The title role in the second play is filled by Alden Smith, supported by Richard Dryden, Robert C. Topping, Edwina Grove, Shirley Rugh, Walter Derdeyn, Stella Burgo, Sara Barnblatt, T. J. Smith, Dorothy Moyer and Dorothy Zeigler. Miss Zeigler assists the director.

This evening's performances will be at 8:15 o'clock. No tickets are required.

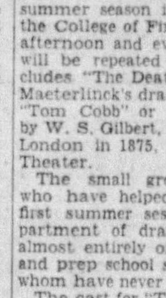
MUSIC

Lawn Concert

Hotel Schenley

One of the most enthusiastic audiences came to the Hotel Schenley lawn last night to applaud Victor Saudek's orchestra and to hear two popular soloists, Lucile Bauch, soprano, and Henry Harris, pianist.



Mr. Lissfelt

Saudek played the entire Mendelssohn music to "Midsummer Night's Dream," exceptionally successful in the open air, and one of the best played offerings of the summer. At the close came the brilliant "Italian Caprice" of Tschaikowsky and for lighter music, selections from Grofe's "Band Wagon."

Miss Bauch is one of our most intelligent singers who knows style and her music. The Mozart "Alleluja" was unexpectedly fine under conditions not too favorable to Mozart. She sang two encores, "In the Luxemburg Gardens" and Del Riego's "Homing."

Harris played the Liszt E Flat Concerto, giving it all the nuance and spirit he could muster against a strong wind. Insistent applause brought two encores again, Toch's "Juggler" and the Chopin A Flat Waltz.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Kennywood Books Williams' Band

Austin Wylie and his orchestra play their final dances this afternoon and tonight in Kennywood. Monday, George Williams and his band will come for a week's engagement. With this orchestra is Barbara Lee, a blues singer. "Peaches" and the Aerial Queens give their final thrill act tonight. On rigging 120 feet in the air, "Peaches" pirouettes on a toe. Then hanging by her teeth, she slides obliquely along a 500-foot cable from her mast tip to the ground.

Bradford Is Given Major Role

Having completed scenes in his first motion picture, "Marie Galante," with Spencer Tracy and Ketti Gallian, John Bradford has been signed for a major role in "365 Nights in Hollywood," the film which will star James Dunn and Alice Faye and which is an adaptation from an original story by Jimmie Starr.

Maugham's Classic Is Screened

By MICHAEL SHAW

Once in his life, W. Somerset Maugham rose from the level of cleverness and talent to that of genius. This was when he wrote "Of Human Bondage," a novel which, within the life time of its author, has been accepted as something of a classic.

A film version of the Maugham work, held up for a time by inexplicable objections on the part of the Pennsylvania censors, is at last on view in the Stanley. It is a great picture—great in the sense that the novel is great.

An artfully contrived compression of the massive, sprawling book, it presents a tragically realistic segment of life in tremendously moving fashion. Superlatives, in fact, fall this reviewer, who must be content to call the film a masterpiece and let it go at that.

A MODERN CLASSIC

Attempting a synopsis of a novel that almost every literate person must have read is a rather profitless task.

If you happen to have missed "Of Human Bondage," it's the story of Philip Carey, a sensitive cripple (he has a clubfoot), and the unreasonable bonds that tie him to Mildred Rogers, a vicious little beast of a waitress—bonds that bring him only the most frightful misery, yet from which he cannot entirely free himself until she is dead.

Cold-hearted, cheap and cruel, Mildred does unspeakable things to Philip. Her sharp tongue never spares his affliction; she leaves him openly for other men; she ruins his medical career and plunges him into poverty; she wrecks his rooms, destroying even the treasured relics of his art-student days in Paris.

But her fascination for him persists, though he hates it and knows it to be unworthy and disgusting, almost to the end.

Mildred's excesses bring her eventually to wretchedness and a horrible death. Philip, having lost one fine girl through his unholy attachment, is redeemed by another wholesome youngster. Yet the theme of frustration persists; for his long cherished, long brooded-over plans to escape to the South Seas, to the ends of the world, must be regretfully discarded, just as they are about to be realized, in favor of marriage.

OF MR. HOWARD

Leslie Howard plays the part of Philip Carey, and he fits it to perfection. He is the perfect embodiment of the Maugham hero—a shy, sensitive, suffering young Englishman, intelligent enough to understand the ugliness of the net of passion in which he is trapped, and not strong enough to liberate himself.

We tremble to think what some other actors would have done to the role; Mr. Howard makes us believe in it. He is convincing, and appealing, and charming.

Surprisingly enough, however, "Of Human Bondage" is not so much Mr. Howard's picture as it is Bette Davis'. This young lady's performance as Mildred is literally amazing.

She has become Mildred Rogers to the life. The externals are there, to begin with—the Cockney accent, the cheap finery, the lower-class charmer's attitude and postures. Much more important, the spirit has been captured, too. Miss Davis shows us all the little tricks, the shrewdness, the downright vileness of the Maugham character.

We see her mind at work, and while we may be revolted, while we may shudder, we understand, after a fashion—and we believe in Mildred Rogers, just as we believe in Philip Carey.

A NEW BETTE DAVIS

Miss Davis has one wild, climacteric scene that will leave any audience limp. And her portrayal of Mildred fallen upon evil days, coughing, dying, dragged in rags from a hovel to breathe her last in a hospital ward, is as haunting a thing as the movies have given us in many a day.

Never before has Bette Davis risen, nor given any indication that she could rise, to such heights as these.

The minor roles are competently handled. Reginald Owen is particularly good as a robust and unconventional old Yorkshireman who befriends Philip Carey and whose daughter, played by Frances Dee, marries the hero. Kay Johnson and Reginald Denny stand out in other small parts. John Cromwell's direction is brilliant and effective.

Grins and Bitters

THE OLD, battered machine came wheezing down Broadway. The green light changed to red. Other cars halted. But this auto went right on across as the driver kept shouting "Whoa, whoa!"

With a violent shudder the car finally came to a stop. The traffic cop raced up to it and gave the driver a searching look. One look, reports Fred Koszalka, was enough. The driver was visibly stewed.

"You're gonna ashk me why I didn't use brakesh, offisher," he grinned, "an' I'm gonna tell you. It'sh caush they're no good."

The cop reached for his pad. "You don't say," he growled. "That's fine. Give me your owner's license."

"Ain't got no owner'sh license," smiled the stew, happily. "An' you know what elsh, offisher? I ain't got driver'sh license either!"

The policeman nodded.

"That's just about what I expected from you. No brakes. No license of any kind. Are you crazy? Do you want to kill somebody?"

The drunk drew himself up. "I want you to know, offisher," he said, as though he had been unjustly accused, "that I been drivin' five yearsh without a license—an' I ain't killed nobody yet!"

The cop turned livid.

"So you've been driving five years without a license, eh?" he roared. "A pretty smart guy, eh? Well, we'll see how wise you are. What's your name and address?"

The stew assumed a very haughty expression.

"A bachelor is a man who—in his time—has met any amount of girls that he could live with, but has never met one that he could not live without."

* * *

ONE of the strangest happenings on record took place the other night in a restaurant that caters to the better trade. A woman, highly excited, phoned the manager around nine at night and asked him to look in the ladies' parlor for a wig.

"I had dinner at your restaurant," she said, "and visited the ladies' room before I left. I must have left my wig in there. Please look immediately."

The manager did as requested—but there was no sign of a wig. He so informed the woman.

"Oh, my!" she wailed when given the news. "What am I going to do? A few drinks made me forget the wig. When I reached the theater, the man behind me asked me to remove my hat. And here I am—absolutely bald!"

"CLOSE the Dumb Dora contest," wires Stan Lee Kapustka from Chicago, "and declare Jules Alberti's gal friend the winner. This lady just called Jules and told him how sorry she was that the cops finally knocked off Mark Dillinger!"

IT'S an ancient anecdote but it surely merits retelling here. A famous toastmaster, internationally recognized for his brilliance, had attended banquets for years. He was always toastmaster by mutual consent, and he never failed to turn in an excellent job.

Came the day when, at a very important dinner, he arrived an hour late through an unavoidable delay. Much to his surprise and disappointment, someone else had been appointed toastmaster in his stead. He concealed his hurt as much as possible and, when called on to speak, he arose slowly.

"Away up in New England," he began, "there is a little country town. And in the little country town there is a little church. Right near the little church there is a little cemetery.

"At the very rear of that little cemeary there is a little tombstone. And on that little tombstone there is a little message.

"'I expected this,' it reads, 'but not so soon.'"

* * *

PITY the poor fireman that Sammy Watkins knows. He takes his job so seriously that, for the past five years, he's been going around with the same old flame!..

* * *

THEY stood in front of the theater during intermission. Both were evidently society and in full evening dress. The girl had a smile on her face—but the man looked as though he hated the world in general.

As they stood there, a bum approached. He was ragged, filthy, crummy. And he walked up to the gentleman whose nose pointed to the stars.

"I say, buddy," he asked, "will you spare me the price of a meal?"

"Not me," he replied flatly. The bum grinned.

. . . "You mean," he said, wagging a finger, "Not I." . . .

A CERTAIN Broadway theater ticket broker, reports Howard Snyder, has fallen in line with the popular movement to purify the stage and screen. So ardent is the man that, in front of his store, the sign reads:

"Pews for all theaters!" . . .

"DID you read in the papers," asks Eddie Garr, "about the son of that British lord who decided that he'd rather be a Broadway columnist than a nobleman?

Hindenburg On Screen

The death of President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany, brings to the screen, in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, intimate and dramatic pictures of the amazing career of the German World War leader and idol of his people. There are pictures of him as the venerable field marshal and more intimate ones of him surrounded by his family. The Globe Trotter tells of his long life and his passing.

First pictures from Austria since the Nazi uprising and assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss show Vienna turned into an armed camp. Soldiers and police swarm through the streets. Bells toll a requiem as the body of the martyred leader is borne to the City Hall. On the Italian frontier Mussolini's mountain cavalry is shown in hard training.

Jean Batten, 24-year-old New Zealand girl, is shown landing at Sydney, Australia, after her amazing solo flight of 15,000 miles from London in her tiny plane.

Turf fans and society leaders headed by Mrs. Payne Whitney, attend the opening of the historic Saratoga race track, where legal betting is re-established after 26 years.

Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules it is impossible always publish of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Office Boy Is Picked For Role

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—Hello! Hollywood is always full of surprises, and that, perhaps, explains why it is sometimes called "The Grab Bag of the World." And just to prove that some of the daffiest things can happen—Malcom (Buddy) Taggert, assistant to the casting director at the Hal Roach Studio, spent some three weeks attempting to locate the proper actor to bring "Little Boy Blue" to the screen for "Babes in Toyland," the Laurel (he's to be Tweedledum) and Hardy (he's to be Tweedledee) comedy.

The other morning, the stars, the director and several of the studio bosses were going over the list of likely candidates for the important part. Almost like a fixed signal, they all yelled in chorus! "There's the boy we want!" and pointed at Buddy Taggert!

And so Buddy will drop his duties in the casting office to bring "Little Boy Blue" to the comic screen.

* * *

Bill Halligan sends this by pony express:

"You certainly have to hand it to the Hollywood agents . . . you do, indeed!"

* * *

Wandering around Hollywood . . . Too bad, Tom Mix's horse can't see Jack Dirant's new checkered coat. I'm sure the galloper would want a blanket from the same material! . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ben Frank tossed off a swelegant party for Joe Penner (without his duck) at the Cocoanut Grove. Mack Gordon played "straight man" for Joe and gave off with a couple of chuckle-ful routines. Lanny Ross loosened up his vocal chords and practically raised the roof, while Sam Coslow, Arthur Johnson, Ralph Rainger, Leo Robin, Harry Ravel contributed songs and music. Fanny Brice was almost coaxed into doing something.

* * *

Boulevard Buzzings . . . Alice Brady had a flock of folks in for cocktails, the special reason being to meet her papa, William A. Brady . . . Universal has purchased Sam Minta's story "Women Are Like That" . . . Just to talk over old times, Pat O'Brien is dining with the Lew Fieldses this week. Pat was once a chorus boy in one of Lew's earlier footlight successes . . . Tom Buckingham's been assigned the task of putting "Concealment" into script form . . . Naturally, Adolphe Menjou is always sartorially perfect. While he was driving with Verree Teasdale the other day they decided to stop at one drive-in cooling-off place. Adolphe ordered some sort of a syrup concoction. The waitress was admiring his snappy white outfit. She handed him the glass and everything was quite dandy until Adolphe's elbow came in contact with the steering wheel. You should have seen his face when he saw his outfit!

* * *

It is to laugh! Imagine the Warner Studio's surprise when Lyle Talbot, playing an Indian in "The Dragon Murder Case," had to do a swimming scene. The camera registered the dark (?) and handsome actor quite okay until he emerged from the water, and there he stood—lily-white!

The effect on the screen—from long-shot to close-up—was that the camera had played a neat little trick. Lyle was ordered to the beach for a quick sun-tan before the scene was retaken.

Penn Shows Harlow Film

By KARL KRUG

If you just must be shown, you can be in the Penn when Jean Harlow's "The Girl From Missouri" opened yesterday. This is the picture that was first called "100 Per Cent Pure," was then known as "Born to be Kissed" and wound up with its present tag. All of which doesn't matter. The title would probably have taken care of itself if they had had a screen play as a basis for a name.

"The Girl From Missouri" is so obviously an attempt to follow the new order in pictures, and at the same time try to give the Harlow fans the kind of vehicle in which they have become accustomed to seeing her, that the entire photoplay turns out to be pretty well muddled and shopworn. As a chiseling flamboyant gold-digging chorus girl who remains as white as the driven snow through six or seven reels, Miss Harlow just doesn't register, and, for that matter, neither does her picture.

The story of "The Girl From Missouri" has been told and retold so many times that it is hardly worth repeating. As Eadie, Miss Harlow runs away from her mother's beer joint down in the Ozark country (because her stepfather wants her to be a bad girl) and winds up in a Broadway chorus and the flashy penthouses of the Park avenue millionaires. By continual word of mouth, Eadie lets the world know that marriage is the only thing in the world for her as she sets her trap for Lionel Barrymore, a political bigwhat.

But complications ensue in the form of Franchot Tone, as Barrymore's son, and there are frameups in apartment rooms, flashlight photographs getting into the newspapers and what not. Mr. Barrymore is the big, bad wolf who resolves to "save his son" from that golddigger at any cost, and the cost is almost his own reputation. By this time Eadie is in jail as a result of the Barrymore skulduggery, but to set himself out of the mess he has created, Mr. Tone's papa relents and everything ends happily—especially for the audience.

Although the production has been lavishly mounted and cast in typical M-G-M manner, the basic material is so weak that the presence of such illustrious names as Lionel Barrymore and Lewis Stone can do little about the entire situation. Patsy Kelly does manage to extract a laugh now and then, but Mr. Stone commits suicide in the first reel and from then on to the finish it doesn't make much difference.

Miss Harlow may have made a sincere attempt to convert her Eadie into a believeable screen presence, but her efforts are so amateurish that she is almost a pitiable figure in several sequences. Her particular physical setup, plus the well-known platinum headdress, doesn't tie in with nice, little girls exactly 100 per cent. The continuity, too, is jerky in several spots, and at one place it is quite apparent that the censors have used the pruning knife with considerable gusto.

Someone told me not so long ago that Jean Harlow was by way of becoming a motion picture actress. Well, maybe she is.

There's to be a meeting down by the Longue Vue Country Swimming Pool side this afternoon—a meeting to plot a swimming "field day" for the club.

The day of this gala event will be Saturday, September 8. There are to be all sorts of attractions, we understand.

E. W. Mudge, president of Longue Vue County Club, has appointed a committee to plan for the field day, which will be, it's hoped, an annual affair.

Stage and Play Society Members Turn Thoughts to Coming Season

Another forward-looking group is the Stage and Play Society.

Although Stage and Play hasn't named a date for its opening performance, there's a group of members reading plays now, and mulling over in their minds just what plays the group will produce during the coming season.

In former years, Stage and Play has opened its season late in November or early in December.

Unlike the Sewickley Cot Club, Stage and Play does not limit itself to one production a year.

Mrs. John G. Hoffstot, of Greensburg, her daughter, Marion Hoffstot, and her son, John G. Hoffstot, Jr., have sailed on the Cunarder S. S. Berengaria for a summer European visit.

Sailing with them was Mrs. Edward E. Robbins, also of Greensburg.

Dorothy Helen Damm Returns From Home of Fiance's Parents

Dorothy Helen Damm, daughter of E. L. Damm, of Denniston avenue, is home from Hampton Falls, N. H., where she was guest of her fiance's parents, the Frank J. Chestermans, of Lytton avenue, at their summer home.

Dorothy's engagement to the Chestermans' son, John Frederick Chesterman, was announced in June.

The Chestermans' daughter, Elizabeth Newell Chesterman, will marry Ira Gorman Deitrick, son of Mrs. Blanche Deitrick, of Ben Avon, on Saturday, August 18, at Hampton Falls, N. H.

Mary Carolyn Morse Becomes Bride Of A. C. Stifel, Jr., in Connecticut

From Wallingford, Conn., comes the announcement of the marriage of Mary Carolyn Morse, daughter of the John B. Morses, of Wallingford, Conn., and Arthur Clarence Stifel, Jr., son of the Arthur C. Stifels, of Wheeling, W. Va., which took place Thursday night in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Wallingford.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Houston Hendrix, of Philadelphia, and the bridesmaids were Margaret Leavenworth, Miss Kathryn Brosnan, Edith Bakes and Miss Margaret Lum, of Wallingford; Helen Courtney, of Boston, and Joan Stifel, sister of the bridegroom.

Flaccus Stifel, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were William Atkins, of Indianapolis; Wendell McNeil, of Montreal; Carl Fisher II, of Englewood, N. H., and John Francis, Huntington, W. Va., all Yale classmates of the bridegroom; Robert Steenrod, of Wheeling, and John B. Morse, Jr., brother of the bride.

The bridegroom was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale. He is now a student at the Harvard School of Business Administration.

Next year Mr. Stifel and his bride will live in Cambridge, Mass., but they will make their permanent home in Wheeling.

Katherine Coll To Marry Today

Miss Katherine Ann Coll is to marry Ben G. Graham, Jr., son of Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh public schools, and of Mrs. Graham, this afternoon.

The ceremony is to take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the home of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Sherrill, of Sellers street, Squirrel Hill.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Coll, also of Sellers street. Officiating is to be the Rev. Hugh Clark, assistant pastor of Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church.

Instead of traditional white satin, the bride is to wear an informal costume, for the wedding is to be simple, with only relatives and the families attending.

Her gown is to be of peach chiffon, having a matching jacket. Her flowers are to be gardenias and Talisman roses.

Her maid of honor, Miss Burns Graham, sister of the bridegroom, is to wear yellow chiffon, have cape sleeves, and is to carry garden flowers to harmonize with her frock. Her bridesmaid, her cousin, Miss Marian Sherrill, is to wear powder blue chiffon and carry garden flowers.

Mary Burnett To Be Married Tonight

A bride of this evening will be Miss Mary Priscilla Burnett, daughter of the Blue Book Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Burnett, of King Edward Apartments. She will marry James Hampton Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace H. Johnston, of Woodmont street.

Miss Burnett

The wedding will not take place here in the city, but at Sea Girt, N. J., where the Burnetts have their summer home. The hour of the ceremony is 6:30 o'clock.

Miss Elizabeth Bier Burnett will be her sister's maid of honor; Miss Margaret Lang, Miss Eleanor Douglas and Miss Jean Wilson, all of Pittsburgh; Miss Ray Frazer, of New York, and Mrs. W. H. Burnett, of Clairton, Pa., will be bridesmaids.

William Wallace Johnston will be his brother's best man, and W. H. Burnett, of Clairton; Alan M. Davies, William E. Schneider and Richard C. Roughen, all of Pittsburgh, and Elwood Hancel, of New York, will be ushers.

Mr. Johnston and his bride will go to New York and Atlantic City and will then start South—they expect to live somewhere near Jacksonville, Fla.

"Hill Crest," the summer home of Mrs. Elgin A. Hill, scholarship chairman of the Homewood Women's Club, at Huntingdon, Pa., from the time it is opened until it closes in the fall is always the scene of gay activities. Last week and over the week-end Miss Betty Hill entertained a group of Kappa Alpha Theta friends from Mu Chapter, Allegheny College.

Attending this "miniature Theta convention" were Mr. and Mrs. John Peden, Miss Virginia Bentzel, Miss Jean Charters, Miss Helen Edmundson, Miss Frances Boone, Miss Myra Martin, Miss Betty Ashe, Miss Dent Strock and Miss Sally McVey, all from the Pittsburgh district. Also in the house party were William and Richard Horn, Matthew Mawhinney, William Tobay, Robert Ralston and Aldrew Anderson.

Mrs. Hill's mother, Mrs. Harris Crawford; a niece and nephew, Florence and Charles Johnson, and a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Thomas and their children have also been recent guests at "Hill Crest" and Mr. and Mrs. H. Weber Crawford stopped off for a week-end on their way home from Wildwood, N. J.

Brant Family Reunion on Aug. 11

Descendants of John and Conrad Brant will have their fifth annual reunion on Monday, August 11, at Edgewood Grove, Somerset. More than 500 relatives will arrive from New York, Ohio and all parts of Pennsylvania.

The Rev. Harry E. Smith, of Johnstown, is to be the speaker and Mrs. Juan Jenkins Smith and George Hunter will be soloists. Mrs. S. F. Brant, of McKeesport, is in charge of program.

Democratic Women To End Activities

To conclude their summer activities, members of the Women's Democratic Club of the Nineteenth Ward will have a card party on Tuesday afternoon in the Beechview Civic Club. Mrs. Bess LaVelle is chairman. Miss Susan Scheif is president of the organization.

Dormont Girl, Crafton Man To Wed

Miss Shirley Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis D. Cooper, of Connecticut avenue, Dormont, is to be a bride this afternoon.

She is to marry Artemus W. Herrington, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Artemus W. Herrington, of Rodgers' place, Crafton, in the Cooper home this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. U. Franklin Smiley, pastor of Dormont United Presbyterian Church, is to be the officiant.

An afternoon gown of white crepe with a matching jacket is to be the bride's costume. She is to carry bridal roses. Miss Vena Cooper as her sister's maid of honor, is to appear in a similar gown and jacket of azure blue crepe and carry summer flowers. Betty May Burke in yellow organdie, and Sara Louise Burke in blue organdie, are to be flower girls. Their flowers are to be old-fashioned bouquets.

Robert Sullivan is to be best man. After a buffet luncheon, the bride and bridegroom will leave for the Adirondacks. They will be at home in 17 Ralston place, Mt. Lebanon.

Mary Jane Gast At Atlantic City

Mary Jane Gast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gast, of Dewey street, Etna, has been in Atlantic City for the past month. She will return home, it is planned, about August 12.

Ex-Pittsburgh Girl Weds in New York

Of interest here is news concerning a former Pittsburgh girl, Miss Ruth Sarah Klingelhofer, whose marriage to George Gregory Mayso, of New York, on August 1 has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Louis Klingelhofer, of Ardmore, Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed in Calvary Episcopal Church, New York City, with Mr. and Mrs. Harbour Mitchell, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, serving as best man and matron of honor.

Mr. Mayso and his bride, who is a graduate of the Winchester School and the University of Pittsburgh, will make their home in New York City.

Pittsburgh B. P. W. Will Play Cards

After a short business session which will follow dinner at the Westmoreland Country Club on Thursday, the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club will have an evening of cards. New members will be introduced and committees for next season will be announced.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Spectators Stirred When 'Fleet's In'

Fog hung over the bay, here, in Provincetown, Mass. It screened the 32 visiting naval boats so completely that one was given time to reflect.

Miss Brunot

One after the other those mammoth men-of-war crept into the Cape Cod harbor on a day not so far distant . . . In single file they swept around Woods End and took up their places in the still water . . . Lying there in the sun, the light flecking their sides, they were something never to be forgotten. It was a glimpse behind the power of a great nation. It was war in its potentiality . . .

We have heard tales recently of the growing generation being against an armed warfare. . . . It is said by many, we were so fed up on the great war, that should there be a call to fight, there are those who would refuse . . . But when this fleet of vessels swung in upon us, every particle of doubt of what might happen in case of emergency left those, at least, who were watching from the windows of my studio, here on a sand dune.

SHOW EMOTION

Throats grew husky. An elderly woman wept in her handkerchief. And everyone had within them that lump which comes when emotion stirs up and is situated somewhere above the abdomen and below the larynx.

And in the midst of it all, my radio, someone having forgotten to turn it off, struck up from some remote station, "The Star Spangled Banner" . . . It was a coincidence . . . an odd one.

Yet we stood, one and all.

Sisters, I knew then that come what may, the spirit of John Paul Jones lived . . . That Stephen Decatur had not been a patriot in vain . . .

And so, even as the fog enveloped these boats, I could see the sailors on them, their caps tilted, that frown of too much sun and water on their youthful brows . . . I could see them as they marched through Provincetown, winding in and out of the narrow streets, and me leaning over my gate, and within touching distance of them . . .

GIVE TOWN TREAT

Fat faces and lean ones. Big feet and dainty ones . . . Broad shoulders and narrow ones. Lank forms and more hefty ones . . . All, all of them sailors at heart, and marching at even tread on the macadam merely to give the town a treat . . .

Pittsburgh is a great center . . . I love it. I love the hum of its industries . . . The feeling of practical enthusiasm which creeps up in all of us. The hills are an inspiration . . . the clouds of dust rising from the mills are calculated tidbits for the urge of human kind . . . Yet I also have a place within me for the sea. The beat of the waves, the gray funneled men-of-war riding on them . . .

And to know that each of those vessels are manned with OUR MEN.

MANY QUARRELS

T. L. writes to the Speak Up Sisters column . . . He has seen that other young men write to me, and are answered. He wants me to give my opinion upon his best girl.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have seen the letters the fellows write to you, and your replies to them. I am going to tell you of my girl and myself. We have been going together for three years. But every once in a while we break up. Then for some reason or other we begin going together again. Then again there is another rift, another break up. Are we really in love. Give me your opinion, Miss Brunot? T. L.

That SOMETHING that always brings you TOGETHER again, we might call it for lack of a better name, FATE. And yet again, what separates you is an INBORN STUBBORNNESS. An unwillingness to blend personalities to the sticking point.

"It is the little rift within the lute,
That by and by will make the music mute . . .
And ever widening, slowly silence all . . ."

Remember that, T. L., and before it is too late, learn that where one loves, one must learn that where one loves, one must learn diplomacy and tolerance. . . . Practice a little of self-mastery . . . Avoid saying the things which anger this best girl of yours . . . You'll be the bigger man for so doing . . .

Yes, I believe there is considerable love between you and this girl . . .

OPEN DEPARTMENT

Miss L. R.—You want to know if you may write me a personal letter, and will I answer it privately . . . This is an OPEN department, sister . . . All letters are published, and yet I never betray a correspondent. If someone writes a letter to me which is too personal and too much to the point, I manage in some way to veil it so that he or she will realize it is the answer looked for . . . And yet no one else knows.

Answering letters generally helps more than the writer . . . All too often someone else's problem is yours, too.

The Speak Up Sisters' column is to aid those who desire aid . . . I enjoy every letter sent to me, and answer each one as if it were my own heartache.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

SATIN SNEAKS INTO THE NEW FALL MODES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE SATIN evening gowns of the moment are a very flattering vogue. Thin, lustrous, glamorous, they make a regular creature out of one who was a hoyden in the ocean a half hour before sunset, and they come in such lovely tints that every kind of complexion can find its best bet.

The rather Grecian gown with a matching bolero bony smock is one of the novelties, and a good one, too. It is naive in white, and dashingly sophisticated in any of the new satin jersey tones. Arizona turquoise, jade and amethyst are three of the more exciting of these new colors.

* * *

TWO-COLORED satin evening ensembles are sneaking in among the advance autumn models. A black satin trimmed skirt, cut very slim and narrow, may be topped with a shirred silver tissue and satin tunic which comes drawn far over the hips, belted with a jeweled buckle. Or a dusty rose satin skirt is combined with a tunic of turquoise blue satin, or one of a very pale shade of pink. Some models are offered for sale with two separate tunics—one very formal, the other quite informal.

* * *

LONG BLACK gloves, with one of the new huge squares of black linen, embroidered with black bugles at one corner in monogram effect, are astounding additions to many a pastel evening ensemble now. For all that they spell is a simple material device. It is calculated to give an exotic feeling to a costume—and it has been successful as such since the original Gibson Girls got into our hair that way.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Nude satin cut on Grecian lines makes this soignee gown. The narrow self-fabric sash becomes a peplum cascading down the back of the skirt.

Madge Nonplussed at Disappearance

I have yet to take my first ride in an airplane, but I am very certain that when I realized my father was not in sight, as the four boys, Otto and I came to the place where we had left him with the Veritzen limousine, I experienced all the sensations of a pilot high in the air whose engine has "gone dead" on him.

There was nothing beneath me but air, I felt, as I gropingly put my hand upon the nearest tree. Then, as I became conscious of four pairs of boyish eyes looking at me in concern and anxious query, and of a fifth pair, Otto's, with the ridiculous resentment of an obtuse "one-track" mind mirrored in them, I pulled myself together with the remembrance that my father had entrusted the leadership of this affair to me, and that I must not fail him by any exhibition of weakness, no matter how dismayed I was at his absence from the spot where he had directed us to meet him, and which I knew he would not have left save for some urgent reason.

OTTO COMPLAINS

"Mister Spencer he say he going to be responsible for this car, and here it is left all alone. I don't know what Mister Veritzen going to say to me."

"He's going to say, Otto," I answered with purposeful dignity and deliberation, "that you did perfectly right in obeying Mr. Spencer. That was why he sent you and the car over here—so you could help us."

Into Otto's eyes came an odd expression.

"Maybe you wouldn't mind telling Mr. Veritzen that you asked me to leave the car," he said. "He wouldn't be mad, then."

His emphasis of the second personal pronoun pointed his meaning so effectively that I felt my cheeks flaming. Otto's was, indeed a single track mind, I reflected. He had been a witness of the attentions which Philip Veritzen used to shower upon me in the days before that memorable Christmas eve, when he finally had understood that I meant the rebuffs I had given him for so long.

I was proud that ever since that time I had been able to work with Philip Veritzen in as friendly comradship as if between us there did not lie the memory of the highly embarraising finale of his long attempt to supplant Dicky in my heart.

But Otto evidently still believed that my word was law with his employer, and though I was a bit angry at the implication, my common sense told me that just now was not the moment to undeceive Philip Veritzen's faithful chauffeur.

"If my father is not there to tell Mr. Veritzen about his asking you to leave the car," I said after a second's pause, "I will tell him myself. I promise you that, Otto."

He waited for a second or two before answering, evidently turning over my words in his rather slow brain. Then he brought out a somewhat reluctant "thank you," and fell to inspecting the car as if he suspected someone had committed sabotage upon it.

I wasted no time in demolishing that attitude.

CAN'T SEE FATHER

"Otto!" I said sharply. "Please get this car ready at once, so that we can transfer the Chinese to it at any minute. The boys will help you. I am going down to the road for a second. Don't touch the Chinese until I get back. And—not a word from any of you above a whisper, and very few of those. Do your work in silence, as far as you can."

I waited until I saw Otto open the door of the tonneau and begin to manipulate the empty suitcases and the blankets that we intended to use as camouflage when the Chinese should be transferred to the waiting car. Then without even a questioning glance at the four boys—who I knew were, in their own sporting parlance, "on their toes," ready for any hazard, and needed no spur—I stole cautiously around the bend in the winding path, and stopped just inside the opening leading to the wider road beyond.

From my vantage point I could see the road, like a broad stretch of tan moire with the sun bringing out its changeable tones. With the trees above, it was a charming vista that the opening framed, but I was not in the mood to appreciate it. All my faculties were fused into one question:

Where had my father gone?

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

Overbidding

Some Bridge players are naturally overbidders. They vision the near certainty of a game if they hold a bare minimum Opening bid and the great probability of a Slam if holding a hand which should produce game. In watching the bidding of players who exaggerate the value of the cards they hold and the values shown by partner's minimum responses, one is apt to wonder how they ever score one game, to say nothing of a rubber.

Mrs. Culbertson

This type of player should perhaps be forbidden by law to use the Four-Five Notrump Convention, for the possession of two Aces and the King of a bid suit is apt to result in a frenzy of overbidding, the player forgetting that this convention is used only after a strength-showing bid by one partner or the other and generally only after the suit in which the hand is to be played has been agreed upon.

All this leads up to the story of a rubber played in a New York club recently.

Two players, strangers to each other, were introduced and cut as partners. One was a fairly expert player, the other an overbidder.

"And you play Culbertson, Mr. X?" the overbidder asked.

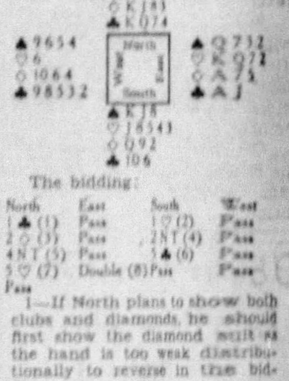
"Certainly," was the response. And the cards were dealt.

By some happy chance North and South, with South as Dealer, bid and made a game on the first hand. The next hand was passed out, and North, the overbidder, then dealt as below:

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣ (1)	Pass	1 ♡ (2)	Pass
2 ◇ (3)	Pass	2 NT (4)	Pass
4 NT (5)	Pass	5 ♣ (6)	Pass
5 ♡ (7)	Double (8)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—If North plans to show both clubs and diamonds, he should first show the diamond suit as the hand is too weak distributionally to reverse in true bidding.

2—South does not want to crowd the bidding and so responds with his shaded heart suit, rather than no-trump.

3—Two notrump would have been a better bid.

4—In view of North's strong bidding, South must respond. The reversal of suits is an inferential Force.

5—Of course, North's proper bid now is three notrump.

6—South attempts to sign-off. He knows that the use of the Slam Convention here is not conventional but he fears that his partner so construes it and so feels compelled to respond.

7—Now for the first time showing support for South's Takeout.

8—East is afraid to wait for a chance to double a Slam as South's sign-off causes him to fear that it will not be bid.

The disaster was not as great as it might have been, the penalty being a mere bagatelle of 500 points, but the overbidder had added another to the growing list of Bridge players who feared to cut him as a partner.

(Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your question to Josephine Culbertson, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.)

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Persist in the Treatment of Acne

Acne is a common inflammation of the skin. It is frequently seen in young boys and girls but it afflicts adults as well. It is not a temporary and passing trouble. Unless energetic measures are taken, the skin becomes covered with unsightly and disfiguring blemishes.

Dr. Copeland

It is probable you have seen young adults afflicted with this disturbance and failed to recognize it as acne. The skin is greasy and covered with many small pimples and blackheads. The face may be fairly peppered with these unsightly spots.

The shoulders, arms and legs may be involved. Occasionally the entire back may be covered with acne lesions. Small pimples containing pus are found. Neglect or scratching of the infected pimples or pustules, may lead to scars and permanent disfigurement. Complete cure of neglected acne is difficult, requiring prolonged and careful treatment.

How can acne be prevented? Every effort must be made for proper care and hygiene of the skin. Proper diet, daily bowel elimination, eradication of infected teeth and tonsils, abundant hours of sleep and plenty of fresh air, are other factors that must not be overlooked.

The diet is of great importance in the prevention and cure of acne. Unless carefully watched little relief can be offered the sufferer from this annoying condition. The diet should be simple, nutritious and contain an abundance of fresh fruit and vegetables.

Avoid all fried and greasy foods, as well as excesses of salt, pepper, spices and condiments. Starch, sweets and rich foods, such as pies, candies, pastries, cakes and puddings should be omitted from the menu. Avoid stimulating beverages, such as coffee and tea.

Every sufferer from acne should receive a thorough physical examination. This is essential for determining any physical defect and the location of chronic centers of infection. Enlarged and diseased tonsils should be removed. Correct all dental defects and have diseased teeth removed. Bathe the face with hot water and pinch out all blackheads. A good plan is to remove them with a comedone or blackhead extractor. Make sure the extractor is clean and made sterile by boiling in water before using.

Many lotions and astringents are recommended. It is always best to consult with your doctor about any medicine you apply to your skin. What is good for one individual may be harmful to another.

In severe cases of acne beneficial results are obtained by the so-called vaccine treatment. Of course, this can only be given under the supervision of a physician.

In some instances it is necessary to give X-ray treatment before cure is possible. This is a simple and harmless procedure and in favorable cases results in prompt and complete recovery.

Answers to Health Queries

M. L. Q.—How can ugly, red pimples and blemishes on the back be eradicated? My health in general is good, but I am ashamed of my back, especially in a bathing suit.

A.—Diet and regular habits should do much to overcome this condition. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. H. G. A. Q.—What will eradicate freckles? Is there any permanent treatment?

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Cool winds do blow even in the summer time and so one woman, who is addicted to navy blue and white, finds much use for a three-tier cape of navy blue dyed fox.

The big success of a recent week-end party was light blue crepe frock with a big neckline frill of dark blue linen and matching cuff gauntlets. Worn with a pale blue rough straw hat with a dark blue linen band.

Be different when it comes to an afternoon or evening suit. A charming model is in gray ottoman, double-breasted and fastened by two rows of six rhinestone buttons. This suit is worn with a blouse of flesh-colored chiffon.

CUTWORK BASKET PATTERN 785

Here is a cutwork pattern that lends itself to a great variety of uses such as buffet sets, refreshment cloths, scarfs, chair back sets and other linens. This basket motif is balanced by a floral motif in which the basket shape is retained but only the flowers are used. The cut part of the design throws the detail of the motifs into relief making a handsome decoration. This type of embroidery is popular with every housewife for she knows that it will be as beautiful after innumerable launderings as it is when new.

Pattern 785 comes to you with two basket motifs 6 x 9¼ inches, two motifs 5½ x 9¾ inches and four 2½ inch motifs; complete directions for doing cutwork; illustrations of all stitches used; suggestions for uses of the motifs; and material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eight Avenue, New York, N. Y.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

There's a way for the dry skin victim to overcome the cuticle's dislike for soap suds. She can give a preliminary cleansing with cold cream, dip the washcloth in sudsy water, place it gently over the face, rinse with warm water and dry.

On then with more cream and do a gentle patting. There will be no starchy sensation, nor will the skin be arid.

However clean and particular the housewife may be, annoying pests—mice, ants—will sometimes attack her kitchen. If this should happen the following methods, preceded by a thorough soap-and-water scrub, be tried: "Cayenne pepper shaken in or near a mouse hole will cause the occupants to leave their home and run. Ants are much more difficult to get rid of, but they dislike carbolic soap, which may be used generously for wiping round the skirting. Should this not prove strong enough, try wiping with a rag soaked in paraffin. Any method that is followed, however, should have a good wash with soap and hot water before and after treating.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Chaperons and Proms

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been asked to chaperon a girl to a prom the latter part of this month at a young man's college.

1—Will you please tell me what expenses the young man will expect to pay?

2—If he is to pay our trainfare, how is this to be handled?

3—Will it be our duty to engage the hotel room?

4—How should we register?

5—Is it correct that I should not accompany her to the dance, or accompany her to dinner?

6—If there is a balcony where the chaperons will sit, must I be formally dressed, or would it be permissible for me to wear a spring coat with hat and party dress?

7—Is the young man supposed to send her a corsage, or should she arrange to have one to wear? CHAPERON.

1—The young man plans for the entertainment of the chaperon and the girl and sees that their accommodations are arranged for, but the girl or her family pays the expenses of both the girl and her chaperon.

2—The girl or her family pays both train and hotel expenses of the girl and her chaperon.

3—The young man usually makes arrangements for the accommodations, and undoubtedly he will suggest doing this. If not, the girl's mother or the chaperon writes or telegraphs about the accommodations.

4—Each registers her formal name on the hotel book or card. You would register like this:

Mrs. Martin Jones, Portland, Oregon.

Then either you or the girl registers for her:

Miss Jane Gray, Portland, Oregon.

5—For all the major occasions you would accompany the girl.

6—For the prom you would wear your most formal evening costume, no matter where you sit.

7—Undoubtedly the young man will send the girl a corsage to wear to the dance. This is really taken for granted, and gallant and thoughtful young gentlemen always do it. But if this young man doesn't think about it, it is quite correct for the young lady to supply her own if she wishes to wear one.

Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me how to word a letter of condolence to one of the members of my society who recently lost her father? I am secretary. P.

Dear Mary:

The members of our society have asked me to write you to tell you of their deepest sympathy for you in the loss of your father. We know how precious he was to you and how dearly you loved him, and we want you know of our understanding and devoted friendship to you in your sorrow. Do please let us know if there is anything that we can do to make the burden easier. We would so love to help, if we may.

Dearest love to you from us all, and our most sincere sympathy.

Most sincerely yours,

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on June 25, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1364.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading to certain widths, paving, curbing and otherwise improving of Brookline boulevard, from West Liberty avenue to Pioneer avenue, the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing, and otherwise improving its intersection with West Liberty and Pioneer avenues, as widened, the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof, and as may be necessary the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby, and sinking of exploratory test holes, letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the cost, damages and expense of the same be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, and providing further for payment of the city's share of the cost thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Brookline boulevard, from West Liberty avenue to Pioneer avenue, be graded to certain widths, paved, curbed, and otherwise improved, that its intersections with West Liberty and Pioneer avenues, as widened, be graded, regraded, paved, repaved, curbed, recurbed, and otherwise improved, that storm sewers for the drainage thereof be constructed, and that as may be necessary, the approaches on streets affected thereby be graded, and exploratory test holes be sunk. Said grading to be 56 feet in width with the exception of the curve at Kenilworth street, where the width of grading at the midpoint thereof shall be 70 feet in width, and vary uniformly therefrom to width of 56 feet at the ends of said curve. The position of the grading shall conform to the terms of an ordinance specifically fixing the same.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise in accordance with the acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of Brookline boulevard between said points; for the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing, and otherwise improving of said intersections, as widened, for the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof, and as may be necessary, for the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby, and for the sinking of exploratory test holes, the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said acts of Assembly and ordinances, and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the sum of one hundred seventy thousand ($170,000.00) dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The cost, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the city's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from, Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds 1928.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on July 25, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1457.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the paving to variable widths and grading of Woodruff avenue, from Virginia avenue to Saw Mill Run boulevard, curbing from Virginia avenue to a point 1400 feet westwardly, the construction of a storm sewer for the drainage thereof and otherwise improving, including, as may be necessary, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby and sinking of exploratory test holes; letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited thereby, and providing further, for the payment of the city's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Woodruff avenue be paved to variable widths and graded from Virginia avenue to Saw Mill Run boulevard, curbed from Virginia avenue to a point 1400 feet westwardly, a storm sewer constructed for the drainage thereof and that it be otherwise improved; said paving shall have a width of 40 feet from Virginia avenue to a point 1400 feet westwardly and a width of 20 feet from that point to Saw Mill Run boulevard, the center line thereof to coincide with the center line of the street as opened, and that, as may be necessary, approaches be graded on streets affected thereby and exploratory test holes be sunk.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points and the construction of a storm sewer for the drainage thereof, including, as may be necessary, the grading of said approaches and sinking of exploratory test holes; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said acts of Assembly and ordinances, and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of $130,000.00, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the city's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on July 25, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1460.

AN ORDINANCE—Widening Merrimac street, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Virginia avenue to Woodruff street, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the westerly line of Merrimac street, from Virginia avenue to Woodruff street, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width so that the street as widened shall lie between the following described lines, to-wit:

The westerly line shall begin on the southerly line of Virginia avenue at a point of curve distant north 78 degrees 23 minutes 55 seconds west 14.83 feet along the southerly line of Virginia avenue from the present westerly line of Merrimac street; thence extending southeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 15 feet and a central angle of 87 degrees 46 minutes 15 seconds for an arc distance of 22.98 feet to a point of tangent on the present westerly line of Merrimac street; thence along the present westerly line of Merrimac street 9 degrees 22 minutes 20 seconds west 487.64 feet to the southerly line of Omaha street; thence along the southerly line of Omaha street, south 80 degrees 05 minutes 40 seconds east 45 feet to a point; thence south 9 degrees 24 minutes 20 second west 37 feet to a point; thence southwestwardly 82 feet, more or less, to the northerly line of Woodruff street at a point of tangent on the same.

The easterly line shall begin on the southerly line of Virginia avenue at a point of curve distant south 75 degrees 47 minutes 55 seconds east 30.95 feet along the southerly line of Virginia avenue from the present easterly line of Merrimac street; thence extending southwestwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 20 feet and a central angle of 106 degrees 49 minutes 45 seconds for an arc distance of 37.29 feet to a point of tangen; thence by the tangent south 2 degrees 37 minutes 40 seconds east 128 feet to a point of curve; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 356 feet and a central angle of 6 degrees 15 minutes for an arc distance of 38.18 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent south 3 degrees 37 minutes 20 seconds west 153 feet to a point of curve; thence southeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 100 feet and a central angle of 34 degrees 35 minutes for an arc distance of 60.36 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent south 30 degrees 57 minutes 40 seconds east 19 feet, more or less, to a point of curve, thence southeastwardly and eastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 30 feet for an arc distance of 45 feet, more or less, to the northerly line of Woodruff street at a point of reverse curve on the same.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Merrimac street, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Virginia avenue to Woodruff street, to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NO. 223.

AN ORDINANCE—Opening Brookline boulevard, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from West Liberty avenue to Pioneer avenue, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby and providing further for the payment of the city's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Brookline boulevard, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from West Liberty avenue to Pioneer avenue, be and the same is hereby opened to a variable width, so that the boulevard, as opened, shall lie between the following described street lines.

The westerly and southerly line shall begin at a point of curve on the southerly line of West Liberty avenue, distant south 69 degrees 01 minute 20 seconds west 63.53 feet along the southerly line of West Liberty avenue from the intersection of the present westerly line of Brookline boulevard; thence shall extend northeastwardly, eastwardly and southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 30 feet, a central angle of 140 degrees 10 seconds, and a chord bearing south 40 degrees 58 minutes 25 seconds east, for an arc distance of 73.31 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent, parallel to and 26 feet west of the westerly line of the right of way of the West Liberty and Suburban Street Railway, south 29 degrees 01 minutes 30 seconds west 343.43 feet to a point of curve; thence southwardly, continuing parallel to the westerly line of said right of way, by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 1083.11 feet and a central angle of 5 degrees 31 minutes for an arc distance of 104.80 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent, continuing, parallel to the westerly line of the said right of way, south 23 degrees 29 minutes 30 seconds west 177.82 feet to a point of curve; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 229 feet and a central angle of 23 degrees 39 minutes 10 seconds for an arc distance of 94.54 feet to the southerly line of Fitzhugh way; thence along the southerly line of Fitzhugh way south 58 feet 02 minutes 30 seconds west 34.37 feet to the westerly line of Annina place; thence along the westerly line of Annina place south 31 degrees 57 minutes 30 seconds east 120.66 feet to a point of curve; thence southwardly and westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 34 feet and a central angle of 90 degrees for an arc distance of 30.38 feet to a point of tangent on the northerly line of Kenilworth street, said point of tangent being south 58 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds west 273.34 feet along the northerly line of Kenilworth street from the westerly line of Jillson avenue; thence by a straight line to the southerly line of Kenilworth street at a point of curve distant south 58 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds west 261.02 feet along the southerly line of Kenilworth street from the westerly line of Jillson avenue; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 20 feet, a central angle of 71 degrees 21 minutes 30 seconds, and a chord bearing south 86 degrees 18 minutes 55 seconds east, for an arc distance of 24.93 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence southeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 229 feet and a central angle of 39 degrees 19 minutes 10 seconds for an arc distance of 157.15 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent south 89 degrees 51 minutes 30 seconds east 177.17 feet to a point of curve; thence eastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 1200 feet and a central angle of 2 degrees 03 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 43.11 feet to the easterly line of Jillson avenue; thence along the easterly line of Jillson avenue south 31 degrees 57 minutes 30 seconds east 9.49 feet to the northerly line of Shawnan street; thence along the northerly line of Shawhan street north 58 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds east 16.80 feet to a point; thence eastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 1200 feet, a central angle of 19 degrees 11 minutes 10 seconds and a chord bearing north 77 degrees 34 minutes 05 seconds east for arc distance of 401.83 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent north 67 degrees 58 minutes 30 seconds east 82.23 feet to a point of curve; thence, northeastwardly, eastwardly and southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 20 feet and a central angle of 141 degrees 32 minutes for an arc distance of 49.40 feet to a point of tangent on the westerly line of Pioneer avenue, said point of tangent being distant south 29 degrees 30 minutes 30 seconds west 73.64 feet along the westerly line of Pioneer avenue from the present southerly line of Brookline boulevard.

The easterly and northerly line shall begin on the present westerly line of Brookline boulevard at a point distant south 2 degrees 44 minutes west 43.97 feet along the present westerly line of Brookline boulevard from the easterly line of the right of way of the West Liberty and Suburban Street Railway; thence shall extend north 74 degrees 07 minutes 15 seconds west 20 feet to the easterly line of the right of way of the West Liberty and Suburban Street Railway; thence along the easterly line of the said right of way south 29 degrees 01 minute 30 seconds west 229.47 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the easterly line of the said right of way, by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 1027.11 feet and a central angle of 5 degrees 32 minutes for an arc distance of 99.18 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent, continuing along the easterly line of the said right of way, south 23 degrees 29 minutes 30 seconds west 100.41 feet to a point of curve, thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 380 feet and a central angle of 20 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds for an arc distance of 135.98 feet to a point of compound curve; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 159 feet and a central angle of 34 degrees 56 minutes 50 seconds for an arc distance of 96.98 feet to a point of compound curve, thence southwardly and eastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 19.54 feet and a central angle of 90 degrees for an arc distance of 30.38 feet to a point of tangent on the northerly line of Kenilworth street; said point of tangent being distant south 58 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds west 164.66 feet along the northerly line of Kenilworth street from the westerly line of Jillson avenue; thence by a straight line to the southerly line of Kenilworth street at a point of curve distant south 58 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds west 273.34 feet along the southerly line of Kenilworth street from the westerly line of Jillson avenue; thence northeast

ARMSTRONG, MITCHELL PLAY FOR PUBLIC LINKS TITLE

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Dizzy May Win 20 First Circle Larger This Year
Publinks Tourney Success
Few Baseball Play-Overs
Tough Hole for Golfers
Old Boxing Firm Splits

Having pitched his nineteenth victory of the season against only four defeats when he beat the Pirates yesterday for the fourth time this year, Dizzy Dean, needing only one more triumph to reach the mark, is in a pretty fair way to be the first major league hurler of 1934 to win 20 games. His closest rival is Lefty Gomez, with 17 won and three lost. Last year there were seven 20-game winners — Dizzy himself, Carl Hubbell, Guy Bush, Ben Cantwell, Lefty Grove, Alvin Crowder and Earl Whitehill. The number is likely to be larger this season.

Dizzy Dean

In addition to the elder Dean and Gomez, those having a chance to amass a score of decisions before the races end eight weeks from tomorrow are Hal Schumacher, with 16 to date; Hubbell, Lonnie Warneke, Curt Davis and Schoolboy Rowe, each with 15, and Fred Fitzsimmons, Fred Frankhouse and Monte Pearson with 14. Close behind them are Tommy Bridges and Van Mungo with 13, and Paul Dean, Fred Marberry and Red Ruffing with 12. The two Deans, with a combined total of 31 to their credit now, look good to approach very closely Dizzy's predicted total of 45 wins for the Cardinals.

Slugging records have soared, notwithstanding, due to the joke ball. With Lou Gehrig's 35 topping the individual performances, the two big leagues today were only four short of the 1,000 mark in home runs, and only 90 below the total of 1,086 made during all of last season.

GALLERIES NOT LEAST PUBLINKS FEATURE

One of the finest and most successful tournaments in golf history will go into the records when Arthur Armstrong, 17-year-old Hawaiian, and Dave Mitchell, of Indianapolis, have completed their 36-hole final round on the South Park course for the national public links championship. The quality of play has been high in the main, and the tournament has been handled in a most efficient manner that does credit to all those in charge.

By no means the least feature has been the deportment of the galleries. The large crowds in attendance each day have maintained excellent order at all times, making the task of the marshalls an easy one, and the perfect behavior of the spectators has brought favorable comment from visiting players and all of the officials. All around, the staging of the fifteenth annual national public links fixture has been another triumph for Pittsburgh as a tournament center.

ONLY ONE PROTEST IN THIRTY ALLOWED

When the Cubs and Cards this week played over by National League order part of the game of July 2, protested by the Redbirds, it brought up the question as to what percentage of protests the major leagues allow out of the number filed. From President John A. Heydler, of the senior body, comes the official information that on an average only one protest in 30 is allowed. In other words, 29 protests are tossed out for each one that is upheld. Prior to the Cub-Card play-over, no protest had been allowed in the National League since 1924, when Umpires Klem and Wilson were overruled on a decision declaring a runner out who had been forced to advance by a base on balls.

John A. Heydler

Playing over part of a protested game, instead of the entire contest, is not new. The National League has known three other rulings of that kind since 1913, and Forbes Field was the scene of one of the games. On May 23, 1921, the Reds beat the Pirates here in 10 innings, 4 to 3. When Umpire Bill Brennan called Carson Bigbee safe with a run that tied the score at 3 all in a close play at the plate in the eighth inning, Pitcher Dolf Luque threw the ball to the ground in a rage and it bounded into the Red dugout. Eppa Rixey slyly tossed the pill out to Catcher Ivy Wingo, who threw to third to catch Clyde Barnhart, and the latter, carrying the winning run, was declared out to end the inning. The Pirates protested the game on the grounds of a block ball and the protest was allowed, the contest being ordered played out again from the second half of the eighth inning, with two out and Barnhart on third. In the playout on June 30, with two out in the ninth inning, Charley Grimm won the game for the Pirates with a home run smash into the old right-field bleachers.

BEDFORD SPRINGS HOLE FOILS GOLFERS

The Bedford Springs golf course, where the fifteenth annual pro tournament will start next Monday, and which is familiar to hosts of Pittsburghers who frequent the resort, boasts one of the outstanding holes of the country. It's No. 4, 197 yards and par 3, a hill jutting out of the woods 50 feet above the elevation of the tee, with a green surrounded by traps on the hillside, has defied many golfers for years. In 1929 the late Sol Metzgar, who spent each summer in Bedford, pronounced it one of the hardest holes in North America.

A stream traverses the fairway between tee and green. Arthur Goss, architect of the course, who devised the difficult layout of No. 4, gave the experts a tee shot that must be high and true and a none too easy choice of clubs. It is related that during the tournament of 1921 a prominent Pittsburgh surgeon who often had attempted to master the hole, sat at the tee and bet each professional entrant $1 that he could not drive the green, winning $63.

BLAKE AND LA BARBA RIVAL PROMOTERS

One of the most ideal partnerships of manager and boxer that the fight game ever knew was that of George Blake and Fidel La Barba. Ten years ago Blake took La Barba out of a classroom at Lincoln High School in Los Angeles and steered him eventually to the flyweight championship of the world. The two were inseparable from the start of La Barba's fistic career until Fidel hung up his gloves and retired after winning a 10-round decision over Mose Butch here on February 13, 1933.

George Blake

Manager and boxer were like father and son, and nobody ever expected to see the day when they would split to the point of being opponents. But that's what they are at present—rival promoters and business competitors. La Barba has just received from the Southern Pacific A. A. U. registration committee a permit to conduct semi-monthly amateur boxing shows at Hollywood's Legion Stadium, starting next Monday night. For two months, to develop material, he has been secretly training some 20 boys at a private gymnasium. And right in the same district Blake is promoting amateur bouts every Thursday night at Jim Jeffries' Barn. The famous manager and referee has been enjoying great success as a promoter, but now he has on his hands a fight for patronage with the boxer whom he made a champion and who was his charge for a decade.

Drastic changes in the Pirate lineup and personnel even before the present race is ended were indicated today in the expressed desire of Pittsburgh officials to add new players to the roster as quickly as they are permitted to act. The major league clubs are allowed to jump their 23-limit rosters on September 1.

Touching on the plight of his club, Pirate President Benswanger said:

"Manager Pie Traynor and other officials of the club would like to load up right now, but, of course, that is out of the question, baseball law being what it is. But we are so eager to get the team in a winning stride we anxiously await the open season date."

The slumping Oaklanders will return home Monday for the longest stretch of games at Forbes Field this season. They will finish up in St. Louis tomorrow with a doubleheader and will then come back to be able to jump off against the Cubs Tuesday.

DUAL BILL LISTED

Several doubleheaders are included in the long program of August battles in the Oakland Orchard. The fun will continue in an unbroken manner from Tuesday until August 29. The first of the dual encounters will be staged Wednesday, with the Cubs as opponents.

Both Traynor and Benswanger are far from satisfied with the actions of several of the Pittsburgh players. The drab pronouncement put on the Pittsburgh entry even when it was in the flag fight has been emphasized in defeat, so the officials will seek to acquire players at least with outward fighting qualities.

CARDS WALLOP BUCS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—Finishing a poor second to Jerome (Dizzy) Dean and his Cardinal mates yesterday, the Pirates today were eager to avenge the setback sustained in the opener. Larry French has had three days of rest and likely will twirl against the Redbirds in the second fight. Tex Carleton looms as the Redbird slab selection.

The older of the Dean boys rang up his nineteenth victory of the season at the expense of the Pirates. Jerome pitched three-hit, shutout ball before the Buccos broke through in the seventh for two runs. Gus Suhr hit a homer for the first Pirate marker. The final score was 9 to 3.

Waite Hoyt had a tough time with Frisch's stars. Birkofer went to the rescue of Hoyt in the second round, the Cards making four runs in the inning. The home club reached Birkofer for two more runs in the third and added three in the eighth.

CORIA, YOUNG SEMI-FINAL VICTIMS

BULLETIN.

By TOM BIRKS

Over the rolling fairways and greens of South Park, Dave Mitchell, veteran public linker from Indianapolis battles Arthur Armstrong, popular high school lad from Honolulu, in the 36-hole final of the National Public Links championship tournament today, the victor to receive the James Standish trophy, emblematic of the National Municipal Links title. The pair are the survivors of a field of 184 stars who squared off last Monday morning for the qualifying round.

Mitchell, who has played in the National Public Links championship for the past five years, won the qualifying medal at the Keller course in St. Paul back in 1931. He attained the final bracket yesterday by eliminating Joe Coria, of St. Paul, 2 up, in a match that finished on the thirty-sixth green. Armstrong found an easier passage into the final as he caught Lorraine Young, of San Antonio, off his game and won, 5 and 3.

FIREWORKS MISSING

The usual fireworks that played such a part in the Hawaiian's victories were missing yesterday, in fact the gallery was treated to rather a tame session of golf for the semi-final round of a national tournament. After a poor first nine for both, Armstrong led, 1 up, at the turn. Both had medal scores of 43.

The Island boy stepped on the gas on the last nine and came back in 36 strokes to sport a lead of 5 up as the afternoon round started. Young prolonged the session until the fifteenth green, aided by some careless play on the part of Armstrong.

The Mitchell-Coria duel was a battle all the way between two fine match play golfers. The lead alternated in the morning, Coria reaching the turn 2 up, with Mitchell squaring matters by taking the eleventh and thirteenth, Coria going ahead again on No. 15, Mitchell evening matters on No. 16 and Coria taking the seventeenth and eighteenth to go to lunch, 2 up.

In the afternoon, Mitchell stepped out and won the twentieth and twenty-first holes to make matters even and then won the twenty-third. He never relinquished this lead, as Coria, despite game attempts, was unable to win a single hole during the entire round. He nearly lost the match on the thirty-fifth green, but his second putt stymied Mitchell, and the hole was halved.

CORIA CONCEDES MATCH

Coming to the final green, Coria got off a beautiful drive, Mitchell slicing into the rough to the right of the fairway. Mitchell pitched to the green but left himself a long putt. Coria had a fine chance to get inside, but fooled his pitch. Had he elected to use a run-up shot, he might have been close to the pin. Mitchell putted first and was six inches from the pin.

Coria had to sink his for a win, but the ball slipped two feet past the hole. He then swept away Mitchell's ball as a token of the Hoosier's victory. The cards:

GEHRIG, ON SWAT SPREE, GAINS HOME RUN RACE LEAD

HUBBELL, ROWE IN SPOTLIGHT WITH LOU

Associated Press.

One great hitter and a couple of pitchers who are at least threatening to approach greatness received the plaudits of big league fans today for feats which overshadowed the unchanged status of two close pennant races.

Lou Gehrig

There were Lou Gehrig, off on a streak of home runs and ordinary hits; Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, with a new season's record for consecutive pitching victories, and Carl Hubbell, with 22 successive scoreless innings on the hill written into the books. All three figured yesterday in victories for the Yankees, Tigers and Giants which left Detroit a game ahead of New York in the American League race and the Giants three games up on Chicago in the National.

Gehrig, who has made seven straight hits and reached first base nine times in two days, smacked his thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth homers against the Athletics yesterday as the Yanks downed Philadelphia, 5 to 1.

Rowe pitched almost faultless ball for seven innings to win his eleventh straight victory and his fifteenth of the season, surpassing the streak Dizzy Dean made earlier this year. He gave up just one hit, a single by Jimmy Dykes, and three walks. The Tigers won the game, 14 to 0.

Lonnie Warneke, of the Cubs, was the third hurler of the day to turn in victory No. 15, getting credit for the Cubs' 5-to-4 triumph over Cincinnati when he appeared in a relief role.

Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, of the Cardinals, leading big league hurler, recorder his nineteenth triumph against four defeats but did it less impressively as the Cards trounced Pittsburgh, 9 to 3. He granted 11 blows.

Monte Pearson, of Cleveland, collected his fourteenth triumph as the Indians broke a three-game losing streak with a 6-to-4 decision over St. Louis. The Red Sox and Athletics in the American League and Braves and Dodgers had the day off.

Mack Puts Spike In Foxx Sale Rumor

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, laughed at recurring rumors that he was about to sell his great first baseman, Jimmy Foxx, to the Detroit Tigers, or that he had had recent arguments with the home run star. He said:

"There is absolutely nothing to it. You mustn't worry about such rumors. You'll be hearing them for the next 12 months anyway, probably until 1936, but it's a safe bet that even then Jimmy Foxx will still be with my ball club."

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE FATHER OF THREE CENTURIES—Pierre Defournel, of Barjac Vivarais, was the father of three children each born in a different century. The first boy was born in 1699, the second son was born in 1738, and the third was born in 1801. Each child was a boy, and each was born of a different wife. Defournel married his third wife when he was 120 years old and she was only 19. He died in 1809 at the ripe old age of 129.

TOMORROW: THE BOY WHO SET THE WORLD AFLAME

ZIVIC VS. BARTO BOUT SOUGHT

The steam is on for a Mike Barto-Eddie Zivic fight at either Hickey Park or Greenlee Field, both promoters Bus Vogel and Jules Beck bidding for the battle.

Meanwhile Vogel has completed his card for Millvale next Monday night by signing Jimmy Gilligan to box Nat Liftin in the opening five-rounder of his six-bout program, headed by Mose Butch and Georgie Pace, and Beck is arranging the supporting cast for his Young Stuhley-Anson Green show on Thursday. Sunny Jim McVey will meet Bill Nichy, of the North Side, recently returned from campaigning around Buffalo, in one of the five-rounders.

BIG FIGHT DEADLINE SET

The Boxing Commission has set one week from today, which is exactly one month from the day of the show, for the posting of forfeits and the $25,000 guaranteed purse for Vince Dundee for his championship match with Ted Yarosz at Forbes Field, September 11.

Frank Klaus is willing to rematch his Tiger Joe Randall with Joey Speigal if any of the promoters want the bout as a result of the off-the-line decision in favor of Randall handed down in their Hickey Park windup last Monday.

Charley Burns, of Johnstown, will meet Harry Weekly in one of the eight-round bouts on the Ted Yarosz-Bud Saltis card at East Liverpool, O., next Thursday night.

RAMAGE AFTER BAER

Lee Ramage, Coast light-heavyweight, fresh from two victories over Maxie Rosenbloom, the champion, is out with challenges directed at Steve Hamas and Max Baer. He wants to meet the latter on a benefit card for the widow of Frankie Campbell, who died following a bout with Baer.

Local Boy Victor In Table Net Play

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Jack Bokesbohn, of Cleveland, yesterday defeated George Sturgis, Cleveland, in the table tennis inter-city championships, 21-19, 21-15, 13-21, 21-17.

By HONUS WAGNER.

Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

Honus Wagner

Dollfuss dies. So does Marie Dollfuss dies. So do Marie Within a few days of one another. All were game fighters. And how the world loves a game fighter! You know the older you get the more you are convinced that it isn't how long you live that counts, but what you do while you are on earth. There is no room here for people who are not honest enough to say what they mean. And there is no room for people who will not be ready and willing to take the responsibility for their own actions. That's why the world admires Dollfuss. And, if you want to know it, that's why the American public has a respect for the managers and umpires of big league baseball games. They make decisions and stick to them. And that's all you can ask of any man.

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

ADAMS TEAM, FORT BLACK GET WINS

TOURNEY SCORES

SECOND ROUND

Fort Black Cons., 9—Ardmore Gardens.. 5
Adams Bottles , 4—Elizabeth Produce.. 3

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

The Adams Bottles, of New Kensington, nosed out the Elizabeth Produce team, champions of Bracket IV, 4 to 3, on the Schenley High School Field, and the Fort Black Community Club made a fine comeback to defeat the Ardmore Gardens, 8 to 5, on the Peabody High School diamond to advance to the quarter-final round in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament yesterday.

Manager E. Bradley's Bottles crew took the lead in the first inning when Right Fielder Walter Skyrocks hit a home run. The Adams team increased its lead in the eighth inning by tallying three times on an error, three walks and two singles. Elizabeth scored its first run in the last of the eighth on Eddie Conn's round tripper. In the ninth inning the Elizabeth team rallied to score two markers to come within one run of the winners.

Capt. Fred Crum, of the Fort Black team, started a rally in the eighth inning that brought victory to his team over the Ardmores. He singled and went to second on a passed ball and scored on Moses' base hit. This made the score 6 to 5 in favor of the winners. Superior followed with a single and he and Moses scored on Weir's double.

Four games are scheduled for tomorrow. Campbell Shamrocks oppose Wilmore at 2 o'clock and the Al and Gump Lleswyn All-Stars clash with Glenfield at 4 p. m. at McKelvey Park. Weise Newsies will have the J. F. Broads for their opposition at 2 in the afternoon and E. J. Noftz face the Richfield Oilers at 4 o'clock. Both games will be staged at Washington Park.

Softball Slants

The New Kensington Merchants will meet the Gabbel Cycles, of New Kensington, in the final round for the intermediate championship instead of the Youngks Newsies. In the Youngks-Merchant game, the Newsies used a player not registered with this office and automatically lost that game by forfeit. This win moved the Merchants into second place and dropped the Youngks to third.

Elizabeth Produce has a fine third base star in Eddie Conn. He is a nice hitter and is a speedy fielder. The Produce team won the Bracket IV championship.

Large crowds have been turning out to see Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tournament games at Peabody High school Field.

Former Buc Hurler Taken by Death

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Charles Morton Hastings, 64, who pitched for the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1896-97, died here yesterday, after a several months' illness.

PARKS TRAILS AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Ontario, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The top 60 and ties, making 63 all told, came out today to play the final 36 holes of the 72-hole medal rounds for the Canadian open golf championship, and no one, not even Tommy Armour, in the van, knew what to expect of the short Lakeview course.

The war-torn Scot from Chicago headed the field with rounds of 69 and 73 for a half-way total of 142, three strokes better than Bill Mehlhorn, of Louisville, and Herman Barron, of Port Chester, N. Y., both of whom added 73s yesterday to earlier 72s for a second-place tie at 145 strokes.

Jack Littler, Ottawa professional, who shot a 69, the only sub-par round yesterday, was the closest of the native shot makers, and he was tied in the third division, behind Barron and Mehlhorn, with Fay Coleman, of Culver City, Cal.; Light Horse Harry Cooper, of Chicago, and Sam Parks, of Pittsburgh, with 146.

Heavy Hitting Marks Association Frays

Heavy hitting featured yesterday's two Penn State Association games, in which Monessen nosed out McKeesport, 9 to 8, and Greensburg thumped Washington, 12 to 3.

Wet grounds kept Charleroi and Jeannette idle.

DAVE MITCHELL, CORIA EMULATE DEAN, SHIRES

By JESS CARVER

Dizzy Dean and Art Shires, the baseball eccentrics, could not have improved on the act put on yesterday by Joe Coria, of St. Paul, and Dave Mitchell, of Indianapolis, as they battled through their semi-final round in the National Public Links golf tournament at South Park.

Coria lost the match and was rubbed out of the running, but he finished all even with his Hoosier opponent in the matter of wise cracking. The pair put on a swell show, especially during the morning round. Some of the professional stars, noted for their ability to get the goat of opponents and to keep the gallery laughing, could take lessons from the pair.

In fact, had it not been for the antics of the two, the semi-final round would have left a rather brown taste, coming as they did after the thrilling Armstrong-Campbell classic of Thursday.

From the Gallery

The ribbing got under way early. Coria was wild off the tee and spent plenty of time off the fairway. Finally Mitchell cracked:

"Hey, Joe, there isn't any toll on these fairways. Come up and see the folks."

Later on, after the St. Paul lad had taken a 1 up lead on No. 5 and the two started off after driving for No. 6, Mitchell walked over to Coria with this one:

"It's O. K., pal. I'll play along with you for a while and make it look good. We gotta give the folks a show."

On No. 16, in the morning, just before Coria putted someone in the gallery sneezed. Mitchell, in a stage whisper, turned to a friend and said:

"If I thought that guy did that to get Joe's goat, I'd walk over and punch him in the nose."

As the players were being introduced to the galleries on No. 1 tee in the afternoon, and after the announcer had presented Coria, Mitchell remarked:

"You mean Lucky Coria."

Coria then drove and split the fairway with a fine smash. Before teeing up his ball, Mitchell asked:

"How does it feel to be on the fairway, Joe? You ought to try some of the others."

There was a world of eloquence, too, in the look that Mitchell gave Coria on No. 15 in the afternoon round when Joe laid a perfect stymie. Coria was walking toward the edge of the green, his back to the hole, and Mitchell, after viewing the lie, gave Joe a glance that evoked a gale of laughter from the crowd.

STOCKS DRIFT TO LOWER LEVEL

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Yesterday's lower price drift in stocks was slightly extended in the dull early dealings today. Metals held fairly steady.

Chrysler, a heavy loser Friday, yielded a sizeable fraction. American Telephone, United States Steel, National Distillers, Pennsylvania and Consolidated Gas sold off minor fractions. United States Smelting and Bethlehem Steel ruled steadier.

A moderate rally in the dollar against leading European gold currencies in early trading indicated that the flurry of selling from abroad, attributed to fresh fears of inflation in the United States, had subsided overnight.

PARIS SELLS

Wall street commentators for the most part leaned to the view that Paris, which was said to have been the largest seller of dollars, had exaggerated the inflationary significance of the Treasury's silver program and renewed agitation for another cut in the gold content of the dollar.

With drought devastation in the West making for caution, industrial operations remain in a seasonal lull, judging by latest trade reports.

AUTOS DECLINE

Cram reported automobile production the past week showing a further decline of only 858 units, however, making the total 58,554 compared with 57,017 in the corresponding week a year ago. Furthermore, seasonal slackening in retail demand for automobiles was described as slight so far, although a further seasonal decline in sales this month was predicted.

Current automobile output, according to Cram, points to a total of less than 200,000 units for August, the smallest since March.

The British pound opened unchanged at $5.04½. French francs were off 0.00⅝ of a cent at 6.60¾ cents.

GRAIN MARKET ADVANCES

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Influenced by a sharp new advance of wheat quotations at Liverpool, grain values here scored early upturns today. Unfavorable crop advices from Canada, Australia and Argentina were additional bullish factors. Opening ⅝-1⅜ higher, September new 1.03½-⅝. Chicago wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started ⅜-¾ up, September 71¾-⅞, and altered little.

LEAGUE NOTES TRADE GAINS IN EUROPE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Europe appears to be stumbling on the road to economic recovery

Recovery set in for most countries, according to League of Nations statistics, in the summer of 1932, and for several, continued well into this year. Statistics of industrial production in England and Germany showed striking gains during the earlier months of the year. England, however, has currently entered a moderate lull, and has been disconcerted by an increase in unemployment. Current statistics from Germany are lacking, but the country's business appears to have been seriously disturbed by the exchange crisis, and lack of funds to purchase raw materials.

The gold bloc countries seem to have entered a new phase of deflation. Business has been slackening in France almost steadily since last summer, and Italy finds herself in the throes of an exchange problem, resulting from a persistent excess of imports recently.

That the entire situation has been aggravated by the political crisis in Austria and Germany, there seems little doubt.

OIL PRODUCTION UP IN JUNE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Bureau of Mines reports that crude petroleum production in June totaled 80,040,000 barrels, representing a daily average of 2,668,000, which is 92,000 barrels above the average of the previous month.

Stocks of refinable crude oil increased from 355,883,000 barrels on June 1 to 357,239,000 on June 30.

Although the percentage yield of gasoline declined in June as compared with May, crude runs were relatively greater and the daily average production of motor fuel increased from 1,163,000 barrels to 1,184,000. The indicated domestic demand for motor fuel was 36,296,000 barrels, or a daily average of 1,210,000.

Bureau of Mines officials said although this figure is below that of the previous month and June, 1933, it should be noted that because of pre-tax and speculative buying in June, 1933, and May, 1934, the data for the three months are not comparable. They said indications pointed to an increase of 6 or 7 per cent in actual demand for June of this year.

Sun Oil Calling Debentures at 101

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—The Sun Oil Company is arranging to call its outstanding 4½ per cent debenture bonds on September 7, next, at 101 plus interest from September 1. A total of $7,350,000, constituting the entire outstanding issue, will be called on that date.

New Bond Issues Take Sharp Drop

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The week's new bond offerings involved $9,055,200, comparing with a total last week of $55,826,000, and $5,000,000 in the same week a year ago.

DAVIS PREDICTS G. O. P. GAINS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, back at his desk after a four-weeks tour of the West, predicted yesterday the Republican party would gain two seats and "a number of House seats" in the Northwest at the November elections.

Davis told reporters:

"The trek is back to the Republican party. Members of both parties told me they believed Republicans are going to gain at least two Senate seats in the Northwest."

The Senator declined to specify which states he expected to go Republican. He said:

"This is the spending era, however. Two years from now we'll be in the paying era and will have a different-minded people.

"We're not going to return to prosperity by government spending. Government spending is like priming the pump with an eyedropper. I approve of the government building program, but not as a substitute for private enterprise."

Credit Losses Less Than One Per Cent

Credit losses of Pittsburgh department stores are less than 1 per cent annually, C. G. Ferguson, manager of the Credit Bureau, Inc., told members of the Rotary Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. Speaking of the depression he said that it was brought on not by the granting of too much credit but the little credit in the proper places.

U. S. Gunboat Sails In Chinese Revolt

CANTON, China, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Communist forces, advancing on the seaport of Foochow, occupied the city of Shiukow, 50 miles from Foochow, today.

The United States gunboat Sacramento and the British destroyer Witch are expected to arrive at Foochow tonight to protect American and British citizens.

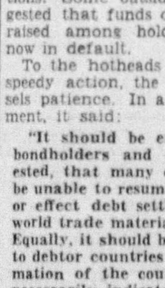
23 COUNTRIES DEFAULT ON U. S. LOANS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The aftermath of America's post war adventure in financial imperialism is characterized by defaults by 23 countries on bonds held by private investors.

Approximately $10,000,000,000 of foreign bonds, payable in dollars, were publicly sold in the United States from 1920 to 1932. Of those still outstanding, about $2,500,000,000, representing several hundred separate issues from 23 countries, are now in partial or complete default.



Mr. Rukeyser

At the request of the White House, the newly created Foreign Bondholders' Protective Council, Inc., is studying ways and means of collection. Composed of distinguished citizens, serving without pay, the council has moved cautiously, and in the meantime numerous individual bondholders have grown restive. Guided by the State Department's effort to be a "good neighbor" in Latin-America, the council appears to be reluctant to use direct methods of collection such as Germany employed in the new treaty with Chile. The council has not looked with favor on proposals for clearing houses for exports, and other restraints on the free movement of international commerce.

'RESULTS' CITED

Thus far, the chief positive results have been achieved by the council in connection with an agreement made early this year with Brazil for partial resumption of interest service on Brazilian external bonds in default.

The council also represeuted American creditors in negotiations with Germany.

The council, a non-profit making organization, is seeking to support itself with contributions from banks and business corporations. Some outsiders have suggested that funds could better be raised among holders of bonds now in default.

To the hotheads who insist on speedy action, the council counsels patience. In a formal statement, it said:

"It should be emphasized to bondholders and others interested, that many countries will be unable to resume debt service or effect debt settlements until world trade materially improves. Equally, it should be emphasized to debtor countries that the formation of the council does not necessarily indicate that American bondholders are to negotiate permanent settlements on the basis of the present impaired capacity of debtors fully to meet their obligations. Patience on both sides, and further recovery of world trade are necessary prerequisites for satisfactory settlements of a permanent nature.

CRITIC GIVES VIEWS

A critic of the established setup, who has had considerable experience in Latin-American affairs, points out in a message to this column:

"The 'good neighbor policy' of the present administration in Washington toward Latin America evidently contemplates no such action by the State Department in the matter of their debts to our citizens as it took in the case of Germany. Secretary Hunn doubtless considers the repatriation of Latin American bonds to be not in the same category as the repatriation of German bonds which he so strongly condemned.

"It seems high time now after two years of default, that the bondholders themselves, not the State Department at Washington, not the Wall street banks who are principally concerned about their short-term loans, nor the house of issue, should get together and form a committee, or adhere to a committee, of people who really know something about the situation and demand that the government at Washington back them up.

"The holder of foreign bonds in these United States is still the most forgotten of all forgotten men. Our so-called good neighbors to the south owe the citizens of the United States, our working people, school teachers, old people, savings banks and others, about $1,600,000,000, on which they pay no interest and expect to default on most of the principal."

July Scale Sales Level With June

TOLEDO, Aug. 4.—July business of the Toledo Scale Company, for the first time in the 35 years of the company's history, has held even with June business. In every previous year, July has shown a 40 per cent fall from June. That the comparison is important is evidenced by the fact that June of 1934 was 52 per cent ahead of June of 1933.

RATE OF STEEL CONSUMPTION LAGGING

By B. E. V. LUTY

The steel trade has grown slightly duller in the last fortnight. Production of steel ingots this week may be estimated at about 26 per cent of capacity, against close to 28 per cent in each of the last three weeks. The balance of probabilities is that there will be slight further decline in the next two or three weeks.

In this review six weeks ago an estimate was made that stocking of steel by buyers to take advantage of contracts made before the April price advances represented an amount of steel equal to ingot production for one week at 60 per cent of capacity. Last mill shipments in that connection were made on June 30. It was assumed that in the week ended on April 21 consumption was equal to production, which was at 53 per cent, consumption afterwards increasing two points and then steadily decreasing.

Production this month has been less than expected and the divergence is believed to be due to consumption being lighter than was counted upon, not to the stocks being larger than was assumed. If stocks have been used at a rate that would exhaust the estimated stocks in six weeks, then consumption has been at the equivalent of a producing rate slightly above 3⅝ per cent, comparing with 50 to 55 per cent for a few weeks last spring at the high level. Taking production and allowing for stocking, consumption in the first half of the year averaged the equivalent of a rate a shade under 45 per cent.

ORDERS FOR SMALL LOTS

In this week, the fifth after the stocking movement ended, no signs have yet appeared of any stocks being exhausted. Buying since the first of July, apart from buying by structural fabricating shops, falls almost entirely into two classes, buying by small consumers and dealers who did not stock, and buying by those who did stock but could not completely anticipate their requirements as to descriptions and sizes, and have to place small orders to piece out. There has been no increase in these two classes of buying in the last two weeks but if anything a little decrease in some classes of steel.

There is one influence that would make for an increase in steel demand in the next two or three weeks while there are some influences of the opposite character. Stocks of steel will begin to play out soon and as no further decrease in consumption is expected, except in the automobile industry, buying will increase in that connection. The automobile industry has ordered almost all the steel it will need to complete runs on present models and there will be an interim of weeks before steel will be needed for the new models. The season's rail orders will be completed next week or the week after. Mills have been doing a little replenishing of their own stocks and presumably that process is approximately completed.

OUTPUT LAG SEEN

The course of steel production in the next two or three weeks will depend on which influence predominates and the chances seem to be there will be a slight further decrease.

Throughout the steel trade it is expected that there will be at least a little improvement late this month, giving mills a better operation than they have had this week. As to substantial improvement, that is expected for September, some observers naming early September and others late September as the time.

Except with a great improvement in general business there is no chance of the peak rate of last spring being approached in the remainder of the year. The usual seasonal swing would not call for this, while any high rate would not last long as a lull towards the close of a year is the usual thing. This year is certain, however, to show a substantially larger total of steel production than did 1933.

The local scrap market has remained in a state of stagnation, and predictions now are that there will be little activity before late this month at the earliest.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Margaret E. H. Gueth.

Mrs. Margaret Emma Hartman Gueth, 98, of 5519 Wellesley avenue, died Friday. Services will be held at the T. B. Moreland funeral home, 401 North Highland avenue, at 10 a. m. Monday. She was the widow of Charles Gueth. Mrs. Gueth came to this country from Frankfort, Germany, at the age of 16. She leaves two sons, Conrad and Henry; two daughters, Mrs. Emma Bauer and Mrs. Louis T. Bauer, and 12 grandchildren.

Funeral services for Lawrence L. Wolf, who died Thursday in his home in Shaler township, will be held Monday. He was a member St. Anthony's church and the Holy Name Society. Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Wolf, he leaves three brothers and three sisters.

Mead Funeral

Funeral services for Mrs. Carrie Wilcox Mead, of 8 Norman street, Duquesne, who died yesterday, will be held at her home at 8 p. m. tomorrow. She was the widow of the Rev. Wesley G. Mead. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. W. J. Osborn.

Nation's Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—In spite of the fact that the clearings at cities outside of New York registered a small decline this week, the figure at New York City rose $225,813,000, carrying the total to a level 5.8 per cent above the previous week's.

The total for all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,521,046,000, which was 8.0 per cent below that for the comparative period a year ago; a week earlier the decline broadened to 23.0 per cent. Clearings at New York City were $3,003,332,000, a loss of 12.0 per cent, while the aggregate of $1,517,714,000 for all outside centers was higher by 2.9 per cent.

This week's clearings exceeded those of last week by $246,786,000, while in 1933 the amount was smaller by $637,289,000. In the comparison covering the corresponding two weeks. The break in the New York stock market at this time last year was mainly the cause of this decline. Part of the monthly settlements due at the close of the month appear in the statement both this year and last. Gains were substantial this week at Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis, Omaha, Atlanta, Louisville and Dallas.

Figures for leading cities showing increases and decreases as compared with those of last year are printed herewith; also, daily bank clearings for the year to date. Last three ciphers omitted:

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XIV.

There came an interruption. The sensitive simian ears had caught a sound that escaped Jerome and Linda. The gorilla's frontal pompadour and hackles at the neck raised a little, and it looked around. A replica of himself, but smaller, emerged from the green thicket. There was a bluish band round the throat of this newcomer.

The sleeves of this garment were secured in a perfectly good square or reefing knot so that the rest of it hung down behind. It was plainly the worst for wear and tear, particularly tear. But this tagging by his eldest child evidently angered father. He gulped more rapidly at what was left in the bottle, swallowed the last of it, then rose. His lips curled back over his great tusks and he snarled gutterally.

Jerome said: "How human. He doesn't want his son and heir in on this party."

"Maybe . . ." Linda was closely regarding the intruder. "But from my observant eye it's his athletic debutante daughter."

"Gosh—so it is. Clothes don't make the man.' Just like a flapper to get away with them."

Papa Gorilla gave a coughing snarl. He shook the bottle, glanced at it critically, then let fly at daughter. Profanity accompanied the gesture. She ducked and fled back into the jungle, the pale blue shirt fluttering. Papa turned to Jerome, excused himself briefly, then bounded after her as if on chastisement, bent. She took to a tree, swung into another. Both disappeared.

ANOTHER OF FAMILY

Jerome whistled softly. "I hope you didn't understand just what he said, Linda."

"I got it, and it was rough. But did you notice that he first made good and sure that the bottle was empty?"

"Of course. Who says that we haven't ascended . . . or should it be descended . . . from apes?"

"Both, in some cases . . ." She sank down on the settee, laughing softly and a little hysterically. "Now, do you still insist on our separate rooms? I'd die every time I woke in the night, and that would be often."

A dark bulky form was lurking on the edge of the thick foliage. It rose, and Jerome saw that Linda was right. This member of the family was a youth, somewhere between the grown daughter and the larger boy still in Mother's care.

OVER-POPULAR

"That pretty well accounts for the whole family, I hope," Jerome sighed. "From being first alien objects of suspicion and sabotage, then of Papa's disapproval, we are now becoming a bit over-popular."

The young gorilla continued to watch them furtively. Then, as if distrustful and unsupported by his elders, he filled his chest, let out the raucous cry that had previously so much disturbed them, and bundled off out of sight.

"Boys will be boys," Jerome said. "This one's not apt to bother us. He takes his out in hollering."

"What about sneaking up and tearing off my slip when I was asleep?"

He waved his hand. "Another boyhood prank. Speak to his mother about it, if he is the guilty party. But it's more apt to have been his grown up sister. The eternal feminine jealousy; cupidity about clothes, too."

"We shall have to ask the master about it. I wonder what sort of freak he is, wanting to live out here with a band of apes."

"Probably like most of this field cult a theorist and experimenter. But a rough trainer judging from the whip. I do wish though that he hadn't such an aesthetic taste in chests." He sighed. "Otherwise I'd not hesitate to smash one open."

She agreed: "They're the most beautiful things I ever saw. Real old conquistador chests. Some of them must date back to Cortez."

"Any one of them must be worth more than I can ever hope to sign a check for," Jerome said sadly. "That's why I can't bear to mutilate them."

SAFE NOW

"Don't think so. The wood is old and brittle and the locks have a wide purchase. The carved top or sides of any of them would be a museum piece. I don't want to get ripped up with that hook, either."

"Do you think it's safe now for us to stray around?"

"Sure." We've made friends The brutes are well trained. He must have started when they were very young and punished them for touching anything on the house premises. Probably they're taught to keep away from them entirely, but their curiosity about ourselves was too strong."

"In his absence," Linda said.

"More like humans. . . ."

"Better than some. Like conscientious dogs that aren't tempted to do what they've been made to understand as wrong. They want to do the right thing."

"Like you," she murmured.

"Yes, like me. I'm a simple soul. . . ."

"But not a timid one, Jerry. When I looked round and saw you calmly shaking hands with that monster your nerve was all that held mine together."

"The way I felt when you started to bob-nob with mother. Lucky we're not boat or ape or bogey or otherwise shy, or we'd be hay-wire by this time. . . . Gibbering!"

"All the same I'll be glad when the master gets back," Linda said.

Synopsis

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined yacht. Their skiff is mysteriously set adrift and their clothes stolen, yet there is no other sign of a living human at first. Intermittently, however, blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. The mystery deepens with the finding of a well-kept though deserted plantation. They take refuge in a small house there. That night, Linda's slip is torn off her by some unseen creature, and again the eerie scream is heard. Linda, frightened, insists that Jerome stay near her. The mystery of the night prowlers and stolen clothing clears with the appearance of a mother and father gorilla and their cub. Jerome recites poetry and feeds the animals sugar water to keep them from getting vicious.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

* * *

This week's contest is sailing along in high gear. Letters are flooding in, and it looks like a bigger and better contest all the way through! Rules are the same as for all the other Junior Patrol contests.

You have to be a Junior Patrol member to compete, and the letter shouldn't be more than 100 words long.

The new contest subject is "What Would You Like To Be When You Grow Up? Maybe you would like to be an aviator, if you are a boy, or a nurse if you are a girl.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To compete in this week's contest, a letter must reach Junior Patrol headquarters, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, before midnight Thursday. This is the rule for every contest, fellows. The winners are picked first thing Friday, so that their names can be announced in the Junior Patrol comic strip Saturday.

Many letters for last week's contest arrived yesterday, too late to compete—some of them extra good too. Be sure, everybody, that you get your letters in the mail in time to reach the Sun-Telegraph office by midnigat Thursday. Send your letters to the Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

THE WINNERS

Feet

By PALMER GRIFFITH

Joe Clark sat on the curb and untied his shoestrings—his feet must have relief before he could trudge one inch further. Why did they ache at such a time?

They were the same feet that thirteen years before had carried him through countless miles of French mire; that had forged for him a way through the almost impenetrable thickets of the Argonne; that had thudded with a thousand others in the long, long victory march.

In the intervening years those feet had been well treated. Many, many times they had reposed in luxury on top of his rosewood desk, had sunk into deep cushiony rugs, had ridden in high-speed elevators and low-slung, powerful automobiles. Could anything be nearer to paradise for a pair of feet?

And now, just when he needed them desperately, they ached. For gone were the high-speed elevators and the deep cushiony rugs. Gone was his automobile—only yesterday a flint-hearted finance company had taken it away when he possessed only 25 cents. Should he buy a supper or a bed? He spent it for a bed—a dirty bed in a room occupied by two strangers.

Joe Clark was unemployed, but it hadn't worried him at first, for he was a super-salesman. A million jobs were open. Just a few bad breaks had put him down. He'd soon be up.

So that next morning on a park bench he found a day-old newspaper. "Salesmen wanted," he read. Carefully he scanned the column, then called on an advertiser in a near-by office building. The sales manager was all smiles.

"Boy, this is a winner," he greeted Clark. "Something every salesman had dreamed about, but never found before—a set of unbreakable china! Make the terms as easy as you like, even as low as one dollar a week for eighty-five weeks. Bring the contract in here and if our credit man says it's o. k. we hand you seven dollars. Isn't that a honey?"

"Did you ever see a sweeter deal? Now we'll give you a sample case and tonight I expect you back with at least six contracts."

Clark was familiar with the "china set" proposition. It wasn't china at all—just cheap gaudy crockery.

Clark started out carrying the heavy sample case, hoping that he would soon find a weakling. But his luck was bad. The neighborhood was a polyglot one. Now it was getting late and Clark was almost in a panic. Unless he made a sale he would have nothing to eat and no place to sleep. Worst of all, he could not canvass any more because of the pain in his feet. He must have new shoes.

Playing in the street was a group of youngsters. Clark looked them over closely. One, a boy about 6 years old, seemed to be of American descent. Clark called the lad to him.

"Where do you live, son?"

"Thanks, son, let's go."

Clark rose and limped over to the house. If the agony in his feet would only stop. A workweary woman admitted them. Clark's instinct told him this was "the kill." He began to edge his way in, and a moment later he was inside, where several dirty-faced youngsters played on the uncarpeted floor.

"Lady," he began, "you are one of a very few selected persons in this neighborhood to be honored by our special advertising campaign—good for today only—of a set of these unbreakable china dishes, a direct importation from the orient." He swept away her objections. When he deemed the right moment had come he handed her the contract and a pencil. She signed.

"Now, madam, just a matter of form. A few questions to fill out so our credit man may know you better. Is your husband working?"

"Yes," meekly.

"What is his salary?"

"Five."

Just then there came a shriek from the boy who had shown Clark to the house. He was crying and holding his foot. Tenderly the woman picked up the crying child.

"What's the matter, darlin'?"

"I ran a sliver in my foot."

Then Clark saw that the sole of the shoe was almost gone. He noticed the thin, undernourished body, and his glance took in the undernourished figures of the other children.

The mother was pulling the splinter out of the boy's foot and talking to him at the same time.

The boy stopped crying as if by magic. "Momsie, I am a brave soldier and I won't cry again."

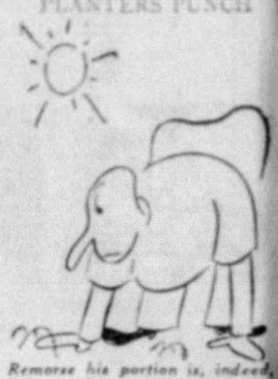
PLANTERS PUNCH



Remorse his portion is, indeed,
Who in the ground has planted seed,
And trusts the earth to blossom with Unsullied beauty. That's a myth
The seedmen tell about their wares
To lure shy planters to their lairs.
For while one sprays for heinous scales,
His sproutlings are beset by snails.
And while with care he tills the soil,
With love and unremitting toil,
He finds the seeds he newly got
Shold stand for six months in a pot.
Indeed, it is a tragic row
That amateurish gardeners hoe.

He warns all girls to learn their husbands' habits before marriage. If they did, there would never be any marriages.

We boys are a bit too elusive to give the future brides a tip-off. It was an awful shock to the missus when she discovered The Bug was one of those tidy lads who tosses his pie plates in the mail chute and rolls his trousers up on a window shade roller.

The Doc wants to know if your future husband trims his toe nails and leaves rings in his bath tubs. Now, Doc, how is a fiancee going to find that out?

A fellow courting a lass is on his good behavior. He always shows up with a 16-tooth smile, tips his hat and packs a pound of candy under his wing. Say, the girl is doing a bit of acting, too. She is as sweet and gentle as a swan in swimming.

Like horses from a different stable, or even ponies from a different brandy, they quarrel, bicker, snap, heckle and complain. That's something you will never find out in college. And something is wrong, somewhere, if you do.

It always seemed to us that a college course served its purposes when it postponed the realities of life four years. And, in the case of cheer leaders, the postponement was perpetual.

The college songs seemed to be corroboration of our theory. Bright college days, boola boola, bingo farm, wicky wacky, drink it down and alma mater are certainly not the clarion battle cry of a triumphant winner in industry, science and progress. Rather, they seem to be the cream skimmed right off the top of a careless skull, unhampered and free of the daily cares and strifings of our various popular forms of adversity.

The only real way to study married life is the same recipe for unearthing an ancient city of Egypt. You got to be there. And dig it up for yourself.

A Blank Check Tendered

Republicans Make a Fair Offer to Washington—Brief Comment on Local News

Pennsylvania's Republican leaders have made a fair offer to Washington in a commendable effort to save the state from the cost and turmoil of another special session of the Legislature. In reply to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins' ultimatum that Pennsylvania must agree to pay half the bill for the relief of the unemployed or will receive no more federal aid after this month, the Republican chiefs say they will undertake to get such a pledge from the candidates for the Legislature and the holdover Senators.

In effect a blank check is tendered, for the legisla- tion which it is promised will be passed at the regular 1935 session is to provide whatever amount may be demanded by the federal authorities. Now the question is if candidates for the Legislature will be willing to sign such a pledge, since it almost certainly will involve the imposing of new taxes. It also remains to be seen if the Democratic candidates will similarly bind themselves.

While the Republican leaders say they will under- take to raise as much money as Washington insists upon, they properly suggest that Pennsylvania ought not to be asked to contribute more than the average contribution of the other states. With justified indignation they express resentment in their resolution "at the discrimination by federal officials against Pennsylvania and her people in the allocation of federal relief funds."

How Pennsylvania has been discriminated against is clearly set forth in the current monthly bulletin of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. It is shown, for example, that 10 southern and western states have received in Public Works Administration allotments, on the average, $21.67 for every dollar of federal taxes paid, as compared with allotments to Pennsylvania of only $1.08 for every dollar of federal taxes coming from this state.

The 10 states which are taken as an example of the unfairness of the allotments have a combined population that is only 77 per cent of Pennsylvania's population, and the combined federal taxes paid by the 10 states last year were equal to only 7.2 per cent of the federal taxes paid by Pennsylvania. Yet their PWA allotments were nearly 50 per cent greater than the allotments to Pennsylvania.

There is another feature of the matter which also points to unfair treatment of Pennsylvania, as the Manufacturers' Association shows. And that is that the favored states are agricultural states with little or no unemployment, as compared with the number of the jobless in Pennsylvania. The PWA funds, which were to have created new jobs, have been largely diverted to states where the need was least acute.

In the allocation of Federal relief funds, the Manufacturers' Association finds Pennsylvania has been treated no less unfairly than in the allotment of the PWA money. While we are ordered to match Federal contributions, the Washington administration is carrying the entire load of some states. And what makes our grievance still greater is that Pennsylvania, furnishing one-tenth of the Federal revenues, will have to pay for relief in states that have less need of it than we.

It is no wonder that the Republicans have glee- fully hopped upon this situation as affording them an excellent vantage-ground from which to attack the Democrats in the state campaign now under way. Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins not only have been unjust in their treatment of Pennsylvania, but have played stupid politics if it was their idea to punish the state for having gone for Hoover. They have put a weapon into the hands of the Republicans.

As has been previously pointed out in these columns, the Federal administration's treatment of Pennsylvania in PWA and relief allotments is not properly an issue in the gubernatorial contest, because the Governor does not determine Washington's policies. But the Republicans show every intention of raising this cry of discrimination against Democrats all along the line, and it is perhaps expecting too much of human nature to ask them to keep it out of the gubernatorial fight.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Re- publican nominee for Governor, is already talking of Washington's treatment of Pennsylvania. It would be more to the point if he would talk about the policies that he will carry out at Harrisburg if elected. No complaint can be made against George H. Earle, the Democratic nominee, on that score. He has a definite platform and in every speech indicates clearly what may be expected of him as Governor.

Mr. Earle informs us, by the way, that the alleged statement in his Media speech that all Republican employes of the state government would be replaced by Democrats upon his election was a misquotation. What he said was that "all political hacks and lieutenants of Grundy and Mellon in the state government would be replaced by honest, efficient supporters of the New Deal." It is gratifying that he did not make the threat as reported, for it would have meant the spoils system. Furthermore, the Democrats should not forget that to win in Pennsylvania they need the votes of citizens who usually vote Republican.

Public sentiment appears to be overwhelmingly against the vague suggestion that the municipal zoo be abandoned because of the expense. Many persons and organizations have offered to donate animals. It is true that they are for the most part common animals, but that is perhaps all the more reason why they should be accepted. A poll of St. Louis school children some years ago disclosed that some had never seen a cow.

The discovery of fossil crinoids, a kind of marine animals, in the stone of a pulpit at the fundamentalist First Presbyterian Church is called "a swell joke" by a modernist minister—on the theory, we suppose, that they show that the Biblical story of the creation is not to be taken literally. But the prevalence of marine fossils around Pittsburgh, showing the city was once at the bottom of the sea, might also be taken as evidence of the truth of the story of Noah and the flood.

One of the teachers at the Carnegie Institute of Technology made a study some years ago of the faces of hundreds of people in all walks of life, including prisoners at the penitentiary, and concluded there was no foundation for the popular belief that a person's character can be judged by his face. A somewhat similar thought is expressed by the writer of an exceedingly interesting article that will appear in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Riffling through the past in settled years provides many long ago tweaks. Last evening a yellowing scratch-pad revealed sundry activities of 20 years ago. I took every sort of job that came along and that I kept so many balls in the air at the same time seemed incredible.

Aside from the desperate effort to make this column walk alone, I was a theatrical, hotel and music house press agent. Sandwiched in were random verse, short stories, articles and a somewhat slazy try at The Great American Novel. A haphazard career of broken bits.

During one auspicious week, a week I did not step out of my hotel room for fear the key-hole would be plugged, I supplied the entire contents of a 36-page house organ along with other chores. Among the pseudonyms I used and which suffuses a faint blush was Donald MacGregor Duprez.

All of this tiddledy was naturally third rate, dispersing vitality that meant nothing. But because life was young it seemed pathetically important. Once the slim pickings of free-lancing overwhelmed and I turned to a regular job but there was none. There were depressions in those days, too.

Scattering literary fire is ever hopeless. More than most callings, writing demands singleness of purpose. The late Joyce Kilmer wrote vicariously and feverishly until he went to war. Over there he did much thinking and slow writing and those tedious efforts are the only things of his remembered. The most furiously paced writer of modern times, Edgar Wallace, turned out a dozen mystery shockers annually over a period of years. But the one volume to occupy a permanency was his autobiography, done with care.

A legend of the news-rooms is that panegyric to doom, "The City That Was," by the most excellent reporter, Will Irwin, snatched a few lines at a time from the typewriter while San Francisco reeled in flames against historic hills. I read it recently. The title was magnificent inspiration but the essay no better than Martin Green or a dozen rewrite men dash off every day before lighting pipes and dropping around to Joe's. Little of writing that lasts is not painstaking.

Another specious romanza of the editorial shops concerns William Allen White's "What's the Matter With Kansas?" reputedly flotsam filler a foreman plunked into the forms on a dull day. The myth persists it sky-rocketed White into journalistic immortality over night. It was not a remarkable editorial, then or now. White's lasting fame is grounded in years of superb editorializing.

No place in cliffed-in Manhattan seems so spacious, skyey and friendly as Battery Park on a moonlit evening. The vast quiet, relieved only by the whispering seep and swish of the ocean, inspires confidences. O. Vincent Astor, like many swains tongue-tied over proposal, is said to have popped the question strolling a moonlit strip of Newport's Bailey Beach.

Now and then I hear from the rapidly dwindling commercial travelers, the types who sported a blue and white enameled U. C. T. lapel button and stopped at my Dad's hotel in a Missouri town. They were "knights of the grip" off every Monday on the dinky locals, visiting the same towns, same merchants, week after week, year after year, returning to families every Saturday. As a class they were conscientiously loyal, sober and home-loving. Yet the comic paper and vaudeville joke made them appear life's supremest philanderers, always on the make. There are one thousand and one variants of the traveling man and the farmer's daughter gag.

A drama on the Fourteenth street subway steps and its forlorn beggar. For many years he held forth pencils and mumbled to passersby. One day a gentleman dropped a quarter and hurried on. Ten minutes afterward he returned. "I want to apologize for insulting you," he said. "You are a merchant with pencils to sell. I treated you as a beggar. Please give me my pencils." A few years later the same gentleman appeared at a spruce newsstand blocks away. The owner in handing out a paper and accepting the change remarked: "You don't remember me, but I owe you a lot. You made a beggar turn respectable." The beggar of the subway steps!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Dare to Remember!

Dare to remember!

That takes nerve. Easy enough to remember the pleasant times in life, the successes you've achieved, the compliments you've received, the good deeds you've done—

BUT IT'S TOUGH TO REMEMBER THE OTHER TIMES—THE TIMES YOU'VE BLUNDERED, MADE A FOOL OF YOURSELF, TURNED YELLOW, DONE CHEAP AND SHAMEFUL AND CRUEL THINGS.

You won't want to remember things like that—things that humiliate and worry you. You want to escape from them, and so you have invented an elaborate tissue of alibis and excuses which you use, even in your secret thoughts, to comfort your vanity or soothe your conscience.

But if you look at the bright side only you learn nothing about yourself, or life, and as a consequence you'll continue to commit stupid, silly and vicious acts. For the cause of them will still be in you.

YOU'LL NEVER PREVENT MISTAKES IN THE FUTURE UNLESS YOU STUDY THE MISTAKES OF THE PAST.

Stop thinking of those past mistakes as blots on your records. As a matter of fact, a mistake is your greatest asset—if you'll use it right.

YOU CAN LEARN MORE FROM ONE PAINFUL MISTAKE THAN YOU CAN FROM A THOUSAND PLEASANT SUCCESSES.

Dare to remember! Dare to remember everything! Dare to lift the curtain and face all the badness and madness and sadness that has come into your life.

Don't linger over it unnecessarily. Don't make a wallow of regret, nor a racket of self-pity; but take a good, honest look. Stop making alibis. Stop blaming the other fellow. Admit your own responsibility for the thing you have done. He, too, may have been somewhat responsible BUT IF YOU'LL HANDLE YOUR OWN SHARE OF THE BLAME, YOU'LL HAVE YOUR HANDS FULL WITHOUT FUSSING OVER HIS.

Study why you did that thing of which you are ashamed. What secret weakness, in your own nature, tricked you into it?

Does that same weakness still exist? If it does you will surely make the same mistake again, in some other form, unless you find and fight the flaw which caused it.

Dare to remember everything! And, as you remember, dare to be proud!

You took a risk? And got yourself into a mess? BE PROUD BECAUSE YOU HAD THE COURAGE TO TAKE THAT RISK. Make up your mind to use better sense next time; but still be proud of the courage that forced that past blunder.

You loved the wrong person? Put a nick in your reputation? BE PROUD THAT YOUR HEART WAS GREAT ENOUGH TO LOVE, EVEN THOUGH IT WAS UNWISELY. Be a better picker next time; but do not be ashamed of the abundance in you that made you long to share your life.

BE ASHAMED ONLY OF THE TIMES WHEN YOU DUCKED LIFE, AND TWO-TIMED YOURSELF BY YOUR OWN COWARDICE.

And even dare to remember those times—with healing scorn. A live life is bound to make mistakes. Even God seems to have made a few Himself! Yet he goes right on turning us out, with magnificent nonchalance. No hangovers of regret for Him! Survey your own past with nonchalance of a god. See everything. Admit everything. AND THEN—GET GOING!

Farley's Three Jobs Blow To Merit System

By James T. Williams, Jr.

THERE is one decision which President Roosevelt cannot delay much longer without sapping the force of his leadership. He must soon decide what to do with James A. Farley.

Either Mr. Farley will have to be eased out of the cabinet or he must resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee and as chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York. The country is in no mood to tolerate the holding of these three positions much longer by the same man, even so urbane a politician as Mr. Farley.

The fact that Mr. Farley is directing the course of these two political committees in the same day and from the same office that the American people are paying him to perform the duties of Postmaster-General is chiefly to blame for the sinister spread of the spoils system and the most wanton sacrifice of the merit system that men now living have ever witnessed under any administration.

* * *

Makes Peace With Tammany Hall

TO make the spectacle even more obnoxious, Mr. Farley appears to have made his peace with Tammany Hall, whose new leader has begun to promise that organization new slices of political pork in the form of large grants of federal patronage at the hands of the generous Mr. Farley.

To the influence of Mr. Farley is attributed the refusal of Congress to protect the numerous new federal agencies that have been set up since the administration entered power by putting them under existing civil service laws. Every time one of these is exempted the power of Mr. Farley is increased, and every time this is done the independence of Congress is diminished.

* * *

Spoils Used To Build Machine

TO the spoils system to which Mr. Farley has tied the administration is in part due the growing dissatisfaction in many states over the way in which various relief agencies are being administered. Instead of being run for the benefit of the destitute, TOO MANY OF THESE AGENCIES ARE BEING UTILIZED UNDER THE SPOILS SYSTEM SPONSORED BY MR. FARLEY TO BUILD UP THE NATIONAL POLITICAL MACHINE WHICH HE HEADS as chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the state political machine which he dominates as chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee.

No member of the cabinet has been able to appoint anybody to office without the advice and consent of Mr. Farley, except in the comparatively few instances where Mr. Roosevelt has been prevailed upon to overrule Mr. Farley.

No head of an independent commission has been able to call to his assistance anybody whom Mr. Farley did not approve, unless the President intervened, which has been seldom.

The absurd theory upon which this dictatorship of the spoilsmen of politics has been set up seems to be that Mr. Roosevelt owes his nomination and election to Mr. Farley and his powerful political machine and that the President is dependent upon the same political boss for whatever chance he has of renomination and reelection.

Human Side of the News

England, Shocked at the Manner of Dillinger's Passing, Has Parallel Case in Its Own Police Annals

By Edwin C. Hill

A SURVEY of English newspapers reveals that some English editors found it difficult to understand why our federal agents laid a trap for Dillinger and shot him down without warning. "A serious defect in the American criminal judicial system," "Not a matter for excessive self-congratulation among American authorities."

Such was the tone of numerous editorials. Johnny Bull's memory must be a bit short. There was an occasion, and a very bloody one, when the London police trapped a band of criminals and not only fired enough bullets at them to kill all the criminals in England, but fired the house they lurked in.

The story is a thriller. At half-past 10 on the night of December 16, 1910, a Mr. Isenstein, owner of a fancy-goods shop in Houndsditch, in London, became alarmed by mysterious rappings at the back of his premises. They came, evidently, from the house next door. Mr. Isenstein sent for the police.

A party of six officers and constables arrived. Two were posted at the rear of the house, and the sergeant, followed by three others, went to the door and knocked, pushed the door open and entered a gas-lighted room. There seemed no reason for precautions. It was an ordinary police inquiry.

Suddenly a door was flung open, a pistol shot cracked and the sergeant fell in the doorway. Through that door a man's hand with a long automatic pistol, appeared. Shot after shot barked from the automatic. In a few seconds all four constables lay dead. There remained only Chief Constable Choate, unarmed and already wounded. Unhesitatingly he grappled with the assassin and in spite of being shot twice more in the body, was still holding him when he was shot from behind and fell dying from 12 separate wounds.

The gang of murderers shook off the pursuit of the sixth policeman at the rear of the house and disappeared into the darkness and movement of London by night, leaving, for the moment, neither trace nor clue. But at three o'clock the next morning a doctor was summoned by two women to attend a young man who explained that he had been shot in the back by an accident.

* * *

Crime Type Unknown For Generations

ACTUALLY, as the police quickly learned, his name was Morountzef, the criminal who had killed the police sergeant in the house at Houndsditch, and had been fatally wounded by a bullet which had been fired by one of the gang and which had passed clear through the body of the sergeant. Immediately the London police realized that they were facing a class of crime and a type of criminal which had been unknown in England for generations.

Fierce beasts of ruthless ferocity, armed with modern weapons. The breed and type of the savage wolves who were to devour and ravage the Russian State and people. Scotland Yard learned that the murderers were under the leadership of an anarchist known as "Peter the Painter."

At 10 o'clock on the morning of January 3, Home Secretary Churchill, chief authority of all the police of the country (he tells the whole thrilling story in his book, "Amid These Storms"), was surprised by an urgent knocking at the door of his bathroom. He hastened to the telephone. These words came over the wire:

"The anarchists who murdered the police have been surrounded in a house in the East End—No. 100 Sidney street, and are firing on the police with automatic pistols. They have shot one man and appear to have plenty of ammunition. Authority is requested to send for troops to arrest or kill them."

Duty, sharpened by curiosity, sent Churchill tearing toward Sidney street in a fast motor car. Down the Strand the car sped toward Houndsditch, until it came to a point where all traffic was banked up like a river rising behind a dam. Churchill got out of his car and found himself in the midst of a great crowd of angry and alarmed people.

Over their heads he saw the familiar blue-uniformed Bobbies carrying shotguns dealt out by a gunsmith of the neighborhood. Shots rang out, followed by regular fusillades. Sixty yards away was the house, No. 100, in which the murderers had barricaded themselves. On the opposite side of the street, police, Scots guardsmen and spectators were crouching behind the projecting corners of the buildings.

From both sides of the street, from the street itself, and from numerous windows, policemen and other persons were firing rifle pistols and shotguns with increasing frequency at the house which sheltered the desperadoes. These replied every minute or two, shooting sometimes up and down the street and sometimes at the attackers in front. The bullets struck the brickwork and went humming off at all angles.

* * *

Without Precedent In Recent Times

NOTHING of the sort had been seen within living memory in quiet, law-abiding, comfortable England. Plans were now made to storm the building from several sides at once. One party, emerging from the next door house, was to rush the front door and charge up the stairs. Another party of police and soldiers would break into the second floor at the back, through a window. A third, smashing the roof, would leap down on the assassins from above.

In the meantime a search was made in the foundries of the neighborhood for a steel plate big enough to shield a direct charge. But before the rush could be ordered a wisp of smoke went curling up from a shattered window of the beseized house. In a few minutes it was plain that the house was on fire. The fire gained swiftly, burning from the roof downward. Thousands in the streets heard the roar of flames and the crackling of wood.

As the fire attacked them from above, the anarchists in the house descended floor by floor keeping up their fire as they retreated toward the street level. Bullets continued to sing through the air and spat against the brickwork of nearby buildings. The flames were now beginning to invade the ground floor of the doomed house.

Minutes had passed without a single shot being fired by the anarchists. It was evident that no human being could live much longer in that roaring furnace. Everyone expected to see the killers sally out, pistol in hand, to make their last stand in the open street. A hundred rifles, revolvers and shotguns were leveled at the smouldering doorway.

More minutes passed in intense excitement as the flames invaded and swept the whole ground floor. At last it became certain that the human fiends had perished to the last man. Suddenly upon a spontaneous impulse, which led everyone into the open, a police inspector walked quickly to the door and kicked it open. In the cooling debris of the fire were found two charred bodies, one dead from a bullet, the other apparently suffocated by smoke. Both had been members of the gang of Peter the Painter, but of the anarchist leader himself not a trace was ever found.
